Four Greatest Wonders.
One, Indescribable.
The Old Prospector.
Preacher Turned Bad.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., Feb. 25.

THE FOUR greatest things in the world, greatest in size and power, greatest spiritually, are Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, the giant trees of California, that were growing before Christ was born, and the Pacific Ocean. AND WE HAVE THEM ALL WITHIN REACH HERE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Without leaving our country you may see them, and you should see them all. A small automobile, at slight expense, makes it possible for any family. Most comfortable railroad trains are ready for those that prefer rail travel.

THIS IS written on a fourth visit to the canyon, in Fred Harvey's El Tovar Hotel, at the edge of the great wonder. Santa Fe trains bring you to this spot, Pullmans parking on the south canyon rim to wait for you.

On the north rim, across the brilliant gulf fourteen miles wide and a mile deep, stands the hotel to which the Union Pacific takes you. On that side the rim is fifteen hundred feet higher than here.

MEN ARE small and their biggest adjectives feeble. The greatest that ever lived might write for a year about this canyon. You might read all, and, visiting the canyon later, find it entirely new, and complain:

"I don't believe he ever saw it."

It is new after you have seen it four times, and traveled around it, and ridden a mule down the full mile and up the steep sides, and ridden miles through it, chasing the wild donkeys that own it, and heard the wind that howls down there, when the sun goes, and the hot air roars upward.

MILTON MIGHT write best about it. He knew massive words, and how to make them thunder.

Coleridge might try and fail. His "Caverns Measureless to Man," through which "Alph, the sacred river, ran down to a sunless sea," could be tucked away in one little corner of this thousand-mile long chasm, through which the Colorado, the useful river, runs down to the Gulf of California, destined on its way to develop wealth in controlled power and fertility that would make Kublai Khan and ten thousand like him seem beggars.

"The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth forth his handiwork."

This gigantic canyon, result of measureless time, long millions of years, the earth's upheavals and the resistless power of rushing water, also declare the glory of the power that created this universe, in which the earth is a grain of sand, and man less than nothing.

YOU STAND here on a level plateau, rising gradually toward the North, from seven to eight thousand feet above sea level, and Mr. Edwin D. McKee, park naturalist of Grand Canyon National Park, shows you shells and other traces of marine life, proving that this high plain was once at the bottom of the ocean. What is more, this solid land rose and sank and rose again from the ocean, millions upon millions of years ago.

The earth is more than a thousand million years old. Geology, chemistry, physics and astronomy prove that it has many hundred of millions of years of sun-lit life before it.

Will this land of Arizona, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, sink again below the ocean, taking the canyon and the Colorado down with it, to rise in due time and let new rivers dig new canyons?

YOU HEAR a voice, in Southern California or Northern Maine, exclaiming:

"Well SAY something about the canyon. What does it look like, at least?"

Can you describe a gulf more than two hundred miles long, forty to twenty wide, one of eighteen, that stretch away toward the source of the Colorado more than a thousand miles?

You might describe one drab, squat "great pyramid of Egypt." Could you describe ten thousand such pyramids, so big that the "great pyramid" would not be noticed clinging to the side of one scarlet peak here?

CAN YOU describe a family of giants, colored with brilliance unimaginable, all the colors that are blended in sunlight, thousands of them, their bases a mile below you, the tops shining, just below the canyon's rim?

If you brought the Empire State Building from New York, the Eiffel Tower from Paris, the tall, white Washington Monument, and set them up at the bottom of this gulf, tourists straining their eyes might ask indifferently:

"What are those little things?"

Mohammed, using his imagination, on his return from heaven, told of angels so huge that from one of their eyes to the other required several days' travel.

A nation of those angels might live in this canyon, feel at home, and describe the place. No human microbe can do it.

HERE IS vastness beyond imagination, impossible to carry in the mind; beauty of color ever changing, and form unending in its variety. Steep walls of brilliant red, half a mile straight down, with a million terraces, banks, caves, windings,

Divorce-Tangled

FANNY TODD MITCHELL

$750,000 ASKED IN BALM SUIT

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(Universal.)—Fanny Todd Mitchell's love is appraised at $750,000 net. But the tall, svelte, blonde playwright declared herself indignant rather than flattered by the figure.

Yet the man, who estimated it, was and believes himself still to be her husband, Seymour A. Wollner, of Peoria and Broadway. He demanded the $750,000 yesterday from Leon Leonidoff, the Radio City master of dance. Leonidoff also was and believes himself still Fanny's husband.

The playwright, after a divorce ended her first marriage, entered the Shubert show, "A Night in Spain." Then she married Leonidoff, with whom she quarreled over his attentions to Florence Rogge. The dancing master bit and scratched her, she said.

Miss Mitchell obtained a Reno divorce and later in what she described as "a fit of blues" married Wollner.

Recently, she quit his apartment to resume her former place in Leonidoff's heart and home. The Reno divorce was defective, she averred, and the Wollner marriage consequently void.

World War Aviator And Bandit Killed

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—A World War ace aviator and a Negro bandit were shot and killed in a spectacular running gunfight early today in Hollywood theater traffic. The aviator was Glenn Paul Rodgers, 37, Roscoe, Cal., who saw service on the western front, and the bandit was Richard Wells, of Los Angeles.

CHINA SENDS CRACK ARMY TO FRONT

Shanghai Defenders Called to Stem Jap Drive

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service.

PEIPING, Feb. 25.—In a sweeping attempt to head off the Japanese advance toward Jehol City, China threw her war-seasoned defenders of Shanghai into battle today.

Crack units of the valiant Chinese forces which held Shanghai for weeks against the Japanese last year arrived at the front north of Lingyuan and dug in to stem the Japanese onslaught.

It is upon these troops that China rests her chief hope of preventing the ancient capital of Jehol from passing into Japanese hands, now that Peipiao, Kailu and Chaoyang have fallen before the invaders.

ARMY WELL EQUIPPED

The Shanghai army is well equipped with most modern instruments of warfare. The troops are under command of officers with West Point degrees and their morale is the highest of any of the far-flung armies of China.

The Shanghai defenders took up strategic positions blocking the Japanese drive toward Lingyuan, one of the few important towns still lying in the path of the Japanese advance.

With both Chinese and Japanese on the move, military observers here expected a major clash shortly. The vanguard of the opposing armies will probably meet at some point southwest of Kailu, midway between Lingyuan and Chihfeng, which stand as the chief Chinese points of defense before Jehol City.

CHAOYANG FALLS

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Completely controlling the Chaoyang area, Japanese and Manchukuo forces today forged toward Lingyuan, 60 miles to the southwest, reported to be the next major objective of the Japanese advance.

Chinese military leaders finally conceded that previous reports of the capture of Chaoyang were correct.

To expedite the Japanese advance, aimed at capturing Jehol City (Chengteh), capital of Jehol Province, and annexation of the province to Manchukuo, a Japanese column advancing from Suichung threatened the rear of the Chinese forces retreating from Chaoyang.

From further north, it was reported that the invading troops who captured Kailu yesterday and are now pushing south had not yet come into contact with regular Chinese troops.

Chinese irregulars and volunteers, it was reported, are putting up a "spasmodic resistance."

'Doug' Meets Mary At Pier in Genoa

GENOA, Italy, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Mary Pickford arrived aboard the liner Rex today. Her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, was at the pier. They are going to Sestrieres, France, for the skiing.

Thug Beats Girl Home Inmate

Invading the dormitory of the Women's Christian Association Home for Girls, at 210 East Stockton avenue, North Side, early today, a thug slugged Mabel Earliwine, 24, and escaped when her screams threatened to bring help.

Miss Earliwine said her assailant had his face blackened and partially covered by a white handkerchief mask. She said:

"I had about finished dressing when my door opened and the intruder rushed at me, flinging his arms. He struck me in the face and, when I screamed, he knocked me to the floor. Then he ran to the window, broke it with his fist and escaped down the fire escape."

No other tenant of the home was molested, police said.

'4 HORSEMEN' ARREST 10

Ten persons had been jailed today following early morning raids by the "Four Horsemen," led by County Detective Frank Ritz. Arrested on complaint of the District Attorney, they were to have hearings before Alderman Thomas M. Geary today.

Nabbed were Frank Benivento, 40, of McClure avenue, North Side and Harry Gibbs, 60, of North avenue and East street, North Side, charged with violating the Snyder act, and seven persons arrested in an alleged Negro disorderly house in North avenue.

Meldin Mehan, 38, of McClure avenue and Brighton road, was held on charges of maintaining gambling devices and violating the Snyder act after the squad confiscated three barrels of beer, two slot machines and a quantity of liquor.

Eleven others were arraigned before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg following an early morning raid by plain-clothesmen from Central Station on a pool room at 607 Wylie avenue. Frank Molinero, 32, 1546 Methyl street, Beechview, was held for court under $3,500 bail, charged with violating the Snyder act and keeping a gambling house, in addition to being fined $50 for operating a pool room without a city license.

GIRL LINKED IN AERIAL SLAYING

3 Reveal Plot to Steal Death Plane for Mexican Trip

SAN BENITO, Tex., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Officers investigating the mysterious aerial slaying of Lehman Nelson, flying instructor, and the subsequent suicide of Erin McCall, 20, student pilot, announced today three young friends of McCall confessed they planned to steal the plane and fly to Mexico.

The youths held were Earl Dodson, Clois Lawson and Gaylaird Pitts.

The statements named a girl, whose identity authorities declined to make public.

Officers said the youths had planned to fly the plane to the state of Yucatan, in Southern Mexico. The girl, according to the statements, was to have "vamped" the pilot from the plane and permit McCall to make away with it. McCall then was to fly to a nearby field and pick up his companions.

There was a hitch, however, and McCall took off late Thursday with Nelson for a flying lesson. Nelson was shot through the back of the head and McCall later landed the plane, walked a short distance and shot and killed himself.

Officials had announced yesterday they believed McCall was the tool of a band of robbers. Several years ago the youth served a term in the reformatory for theft. In their investigation of the aerial slaying, authorities rounded up 12 persons for questioning.

F. R. REVIEWS BANK SITUATION

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Feb. 25.—The domestic banking situation, still strained in spots, was due for review today by President-elect Roosevelt.

William H. Woodin, of New York, scheduled to be the next Secretary of the Treasury, will be the principal caller at Hyde Park.

Woodin is fresh from a long conference with Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, and from a meeting of the board of directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, of which he is a member.

A portion of the President-elect's day was to be devoted to beginning the draft of his eight-minute inaugural address and supervising packing of personal effects and papers he wants to take to Washington with him.

Vote to End Limit on Rum Prescriptions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The House today passed the Celler bill to remove limitations on the number of liquor prescriptions physicians may issue.

The vote was 168 to 160.

'Skippy' Scared a Robber

MRS. J. MURRAY GORGAS AND HER TOY WATCHDOG, "SKIPPY"

Skippy, Postmaster Gorgas' dog, whose carryings-on early today aroused the family, frightened a second-story man who was boring out a window lock on the Gorgas home, next door to the Kenmore (Mifflin Township) postoffice. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Banks Closed By Maryland Governor

BALTIMORE, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Every bank and financial institution in Maryland was closed today by proclamation of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to stem heavy withdrawals from Baltimore concerns during the week. The Baltimore Stock Exchange also was closed.

Gov. Ritchie, by his proclamation, declared today a legal holiday and accompanied it with a statement that the moratorium would be extended daily to include Monday and Tuesday while the Maryland General Assembly prepared legislation to aid the banks.

A $13,000,000 withdrawal, principally by small depositors, from Baltimore banks this week, prompted the bankers of the state to confer at the Federal Reserve branch bank last night with Gov. Ritchie and state officials. The

Homestead Strike Battle Told

SUMMARY

The events at Homestead on July 6, 1892, one of the most terrible days in America's industrial history, are vividly described in today's installment of Hendrick's "Life of Andrew Carnegie," which will be found on page 13.

The biographer tells of the stealthy voyage of 300 Pinkerton detectives, who, under cover of darkness, proceeded up the Monongahela from Pittsburgh in barges and attempted to capture the Carnegie steel works from the strikers. He tells of their discovery by the strikers and of the frightful battle that followed—a battle in which cannon, dynamite and oil, as well as rifles and pistols, were used as weapons.

ROBBER FOILED BY DOG'S BARK

"Skippy," a toy watchdog of Postmaster J. Murray Gorgas, of Kenmawr, awakened Mrs. Gorgas early today as a second-story man was boring out a window lock on the second floor of the Gorgas home, 151 Duquesne boulevard, Mifflin township.

Mrs. Gorgas screamed as she discovered the cause of the dog's excitement. The robber slid down a ladder he was using and escaped.

'Just Opened,' Rum Seller Given Fine

Carl Bellotti, 39, of 1771 Independence street, West End, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail for operating a disorderly house in which police raiders said they found a 25-gallon still, "mooney" and mash last night. Bellotti told Magistrate J. J. Sweeney that he had "just opened up."

MAYOR TIRES IN BATTLE FOR LIFE

Daughters at Hospital Weep After Talk With Doctor

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Doctors attending Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago today resorted to artificial respiration in the attempt to save his life.

Dr. E. S. Nichol, Miami heart specialist, announced:

"We are beginning to use the oxygen tent."

The official bulletin of the condition of the Mayor, read by attending physicians at 10:30 a. m., said:

"Mayor Cermak's condition remains practically unchanged so far as can be determined by physical examination. The kidney function is improved according to laboratory reports. The lungs show no increasing evidence of congestion. However, his exhaustion is quite marked, causing anxiety as to the ultimate outcome.

DAZED DURING NIGHT

During the night, Dr. J. W. Snyder, one of the attending physicians, said Cermak at times was semi-conscious, and that he appeared to be in a sort of daze.

After an examination today, however, Dr. Frederick Tice, of Chicago, said the patient was "fully conscious."

Members of the Cermak family gathered at the hospital again during the morning. They maintained a watch outside the sick room until last midnight.

The physicians' abrupt departure from their apparent satisfaction last night with the patient's condition gave rise to speculation among Mayor Cermak's friends at the hospital that his sinking spell of yesterday had proved too great a strain on his heart, despite his remarkable recovery late in the afternoon and last night.

Engineer Killed On World Fair Job

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A heavy plank fell from one of the steel girders of the "sky ride" under construction at the Century of Progress Exposition today and crushed to death John S. Waldron, 47.

Man Routs Pair Ransacking Home

When A. J. Van Buren, of 218 East Park way, North Side, stepped into his home last night he found two men ransacking it, he reported to police. Attempting to capture them, Van Buren was threatened with a revolver by the pair, who fled into the street.

Luch, Pitt Grid Star, Dying, Parents Called

Johnny Luch, iPtt football star from Warwood, W. Va., was making a brave fight to live at the St. Francis Hospital at noon today, but Dr. A. R. H. Shanor, Pitt team physician attending the big fullback, expressed fear that Luch would not live until evening.

Luch's parents were summoned from their Warwood home yesterday, and they were at the bedside today as their son was given a blood transfusion to prolong his life.

Luch, a junior at Pitt and a member of the football team for the last two seasons, on Monday suffered a relapse following an operation for the removal of his appendix and for gall stones, performed February 5. Dr. Shanor explained that a peritonitis infection developed following the gall bladder operation.

John D. Holohan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne, has virtually recovered from a heatr attack which he suffered earl ythis week. He is expected to return to his desk Monday. Howard Harpster, football coach at Carnegie Tech, was reported well on his way to recovery from an operation for an ear ailment, performed at the Allegheny General Hospital.

Suicide Follows Girl's Drowning; Message Told

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A mysterious summons for Miss Mary Lyda Fitzgerald, 27-year-old Junior League president, was studied by authorities today as they reopened investigation of her death following the suicide of Claude V. Allen, from whose home the message came.

The massage was revealed several hours after Allen's body was found last night hunched over the stove in his kitchen, the gas jets open. Three hours earlier the 46-year-old former securities salesman had attended the funeral of Miss Fitzgerald. He had brooded since the girl's death, his wife said.

Last Monday, the afternoon the young woman disappeared, police reported Mrs. Allen telephoned the girl's mother, Mrs. Charles H. Fitzgerald, saying:

"I want to see Mary."

"Well, I think I'll go over and see what Mrs. Allen wants."

She did not return. Her body was found the following day on a beach of Puget Sound, her automobile nearby. She had drowned, Coroner's deputies said.

Her parents rejected the official explanation of suicide, but later agree it seemed the logical explanation.

MARTIN UNMOVED BY REQUEST TO CLIP COYNE'S WINGS

SENATOR'S RULE UNMOLESTED BY PARLEY

Party Chief Declines To Participate in 'Local' Affairs

Republican State Chairman Edward Martin at a two-hour conference yesterday with members of the Citizens' Committee declined to participate in the committee's effort to pass legislation at Harrisburg permitting Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government.

Gen. Martin also declined to attempt to influence in any way legislation dealing with the delinquent tax office of Allegheny County. The committee has demanded abolition of the 10 per cent fees of the office and is dissatisfied with the bill of Senator James J. Coyne, which will cut the fees in half. Senator William D. Mansfield introduced a bill eliminating the fees, but it was killed in committee, and the Coyne bill will pass the Senate Monday night.

The upshot of the conference was that Martin extended his disinclination to act in local affairs to all bills affecting Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, though assuring the committee he was in sympathy with its views on election law reform.

Yesterday's meeting was in response to a letter from the committee to Martin two weeks ago, demanding that he curb the authority of Coyne and compel him to support the measures approved by the Citizens' Committee, which the committee says have the support of independent citizens generally. This Martin declined to do, the same response he made to Mrs. John O. Miller, of the League of Women Voters, in a conference last week.

To both groups the state chairman adopted the attitude that legislators must be considered representative of their districts until defeated, and that for him to interfere would be an invasion of the independence which the reform groups support.

PERSONAL TAX LISTS CLOSING

Four o'clock this afternoon is the dead line for filing of personal property tax returns, George E. Meyers, head of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, announced. When the tax office opened this morning, a block-long line had formed in the corridors of the courthouse.

Two extensions were granted from the original closing date, January 15. More than 200,000 returns have been filed.

Board members are conducting hearings on appeals from increased assessments brought about through attempts at equalization. County Commissioner Chairman C. C. McGovern, discussing increased assessments, said:

"Assessments are very unequal in the county and this is the basis of all the county's financial troubles. The former Board of Commissioners reduced assessments but increased few, because of the opposition encountered. I think, although increases are unpopular, we will have to go ahead with equalization."

MOOSE JOINING 'BUY U. S.' DRIVE

The Loyal Order of Moose, Pittsburgh Lodge No. 46, has indorsed "Buy American," urging its members to buy domestic goods and pledging the organization to limit its purchasing to domestic products.

The resolution, sponsored by Richard G. Schwartz, A. J. Leonis and John Collett, was recorded by Secretary J. M. Forrest. It follows:

"Whereas, there are about 12,000,000 men and women who are out of employment in these United States of America at this time, many of them members of the Loyal Order of Moose,

"Whereas, many of these unemployed have expended all of their savings and are now depending in many instances upon funds of charitable relief movements, and

"Whereas, much of this condition has been brought about by the American public not insisting upon the American-made goods, therefore, be it resolved, that Pittsburgh Lodge, No. 46, Loyal Order of Moose, does hereby indorse and commend to its members that they purchase none but American-made goods and, in this manner, assist in increasing the demand for our own American-made products and by so doing stimulate production, which will in turn increase employment among the people of our country."

MAYOR CERMAK IN OXYGEN TENT

RELATIVES AT HOSPITAL

Mayor Cermak's daughters, Mrs. Frank Jirka and Mrs. Richey Graham and his granddaughter, Vivian Graham, arrived at the hospital as the oxygen tent was being prepared for transfer to Mayor Cermak's room.

Dr. E. S. Nichol said:

"We are resorting to the oxygen tent to determine if it helps the patient to breathe easier and slows down the pulse. If it makes the patient more comfortable it will be continued indefinitely."

Members of the Cermak family, seeing the oxygen tent set up outside the Mayor's door, broke into tears during a brief discussion with Dr. Nichol. They were quieted in a few minutes, however.

NO TRANSFUSIONS

There has been no necessity for blood transfusions, and at present none is considered. Dr. Snyder said Cermak lost little blood from the wound caused in his side by the bullet that struck him down as Giuseppe Zangara fired wildly at President-elect Roosevelt here last week.

Earlier, Dr. Snyder said Cermak "even has a chance to get well," in discussing reported improvement after a glucose injection.

Twice during the night, Cermak's arm was bared to the injection needle and 650 cubic centimeters of 10 per cent glucose was pumped into his veins each time. A pint measure is 500 cubic centimeters.

The glucose is a concentrated food substance, and was administered to avoid strain of digestion upon the intestines, already dangerously inflamed and weakened.

Stimulants were administered for the heart as action lessened during the night. Sedatives brought some sleep.

John D. Hertz, taxicab magnate; John Harding, restaurant operator; Edward F. Kelly, public official, and Alderman James Bowler, all of Chicago, maintained a vigil in the sun parlor just outside the Mayor's room, most of the night.

Today

coves, peaks, sharp minaret shapes.

Come, see for yourself, and you will never ask anyone to describe this marvel, this miracle that says to men:

"Here you may test your capacity to see, understand and feel, and here you may realize that all your works are nothing."

AFTER YOU have looked and shrunk, and looked again and shrunk to nothing, it is a relief to have Mr. Tillotson, superintendent of this national park, and Mr. Shirley, who has lived on this rim for 27 years, tell you about men.

The Hermit Trail, that winds along the canyon's rim, was named for an old Frenchman, Louis Boucher, who lived down below the rim, almost one hundred years ago, making trails on the floor of the canyon, looking for gold.

He never found gold, so he died looking, and had a life worth while. His grave is the biggest and finest in the world, somewhere beside some canyon trail. Envy him.

WHEN HE toiled to the canyon rim and looked off across the flat land, old Louis Boucher saw a snow-covered mountain, then unnamed. Now it is called "Bill Williams Mountain."

"Who was Bill Williams? Well, he was a queer character, wanderer, gold prospector, like everybody else. He could fight, and did, Indians or whites. He kept on wandering and someone killed him, over in Colorado. To tell you the truth, he was a preacher first, a circuit rider, who turned bad. Anyhow he has that big mountain for a monument."

Must we worry for the circuit preacher "turned bad," or, at the last day, will he hear the merciful words:

"At least you took the trouble to see the beautiful earth that had been given to you, and you tell about it interestingly, so you are forgiven for turning bad. Stay up here."

AT THE bottom of the canyon, between walls of black granite, twelve hundred feet high, its hardness overcome by the patient water, flows the Colorado River, carrying every day one million tons of sand and silt down to the Gulf of California.

While you talk, the Colorado, never stopping, runs on to the ocean, whence it came, of which it knows nothing.

Tuesday Deadline For Driver Licenses

The deadline on 1932 driver's licenses is Tuesday midnight and motorists operating cars after that time without 1933 cards run the risk of arrest and fines, the legal department of the Pittsburgh Motor Club warned in a statement today.

A total of 1,986,000 drivers were licensed in Pennsylvania in 1932, but Harrisburg reports show this year's renewals are falling behind.

DAVIS TO AVOID PINCHOT ROW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, said he did not intend to get "into any controversy" with Gov. Gifford Pinchot because the Governor so far has failed to send the Senate a certificate of Davis' re-election.

Hinting at the several verbal duels he has fought with Pinchot in the past, the stocky Republican Senator leaned back in his chair and said he wasn't "getting into any controversy with anyone right now." He added:

"I used to get into them, but I'm not any more."

Within a few hours after Charles Pace, Senate financial secretary, said yesterday that Davis and his office force would go off the government payroll March 4, unless Pinchot forwarded the certificate to the Senate before that date, Pinchot refused to say when, or if, the certificate would be forthcoming.

PARK PREPARES NEW KLINE FIGHT

Mayor Faces Court Decision in Move For New Trial

The stage was being set today in Butler for arraignment of Mayor Charles H. Kline in the court where he was convicted of misdemeanor in office.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park was there to perfect the prosecution's plans preparatory to convening of the trial court Wednesday. Judge Thomas D. Finletter, of Philadelphia, will mount the bench at 11 a. m., and another court drama, with the Mayor as the central figure, will be under way.

FATE IN BALANCE

Officialdom and private citizen today were asking:

"Will Mayor Kline, with the count 3 and 1 against him, win another round before the trial court?"

If not, he will be sentenced. If he wins, he will have a new trial. In the event he loses, he will have recourse to an appeal from the sentence.

The Butler trial court, with Judge Finletter sitting as a visiting jurist assigned by the State Supreme Court, was the scene of the lone victory scored by the Mayor in his effort to escape punishment. After a jury convicted him there, Judge Finletter set aside the verdict.

HIGH COURT RULE

Fortune frowned on the Mayor, however, when the Superior Court reversed Judge Finletter's decision and the State Supreme Court sustained the Superior Court.

Whatever the ruling as Mayor Kline faces the Butler County Court, he likely will not lose his office immediately, as an appeal would stay execution of that provision in the law.

SCHMIDT URGES HEARST PLAN

The greatly increased public works system which William Randolph Hearst, publisher, advocates as part of his program to aid recovery, is sound advice, and advice that should be followed, Edward L. Schmidt, County Planning Engineer, believes.

Mr. Schmidt advocates greatly increased public works during periods of depression, to be paid ordinarily by funds set aside in good times but to be financed now by bond issues which would be repaid in the future.

Mr. Schmidt said that officials of counties, boroughs, and townships should heed the advice of Mr. Hearst and, with the return of prosperity, lay aside funds for public works projects which can be carried out during depressions. He said also that it is unfortunate that most municipalities had spent all their money during times of prosperity and now are unable to raise funds with which to follow the advice of the publisher.

LEADER SOUGHT IN DOPE RING

Belief that the arrest of a Chinese will lead to discovery of a dealer in narcotics operating here was expressed today by City Detective John Hooper as the Chinese, Yee Pone, 28, a laundryman, of 420 East Ohio street, was held in Central Police Court for further investigation.

Hooper told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg he and Detective Walter Monaghan trailed Pone last night and found 100 grains of gum opium in his possession. He asked Rothenberg to continue the hearing, saying:

"This fellow is just an addict. We want the bigger fellow who is selling the opium in town."

Leading Physician Dies in New Castle

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 25.—Dr. Charles Anderson Reed, 74, prominent physician, died Thursday night. He was born in Lawrence County and had spent his entire life in this city and vicinity. He had practiced medicine here for 46 years.

SENATORS HEAR ATTERBURY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(AP.)—Individual treatment of war debtors, a balanced budget, a sales tax and regulation of all transportation facilities were advocated before the Senate Finance Committee today by W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, proposed placing all banks under the Federal Reserve System, and other moves.

Atterbury, who appeared but a few moments, smilingly told members in their study of economic ills and possible remedies he was appearing "as a private citizen," adding:

"There is no panacea for the resumption of prosperity except the slow, painful one of hitting the bottom and then slowly building up with a sane and economical foundation on which to build."

Adjustment of tariffs was termed by Atterbury an "essential element" in debt discussions, but he said he did not feel disarmament had any place in such negotiations.

STORM LASHING BRITAIN KILLS 7

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Seven scattered deaths, a large number of persons injured and widespread disruption of railroad schedules were among the tolls reckoned today in a great snowstorm which struck the British isles Friday.

Communication lines were down in many places and schools were closed. Ireland, Wales and Yorkshire were the worst sufferers. Anxiety for 80 children stranded in South Wales snowdrifts on their way to a choir festival was relieved this morning when it was learned they were all safe.

Chatterton's Fingers Broken by Auto Door

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Ruth Chatterton, motion picture actress, suffered the fracture of two fingers when her hand was caught in a closing motor door at her studio yesterday. The picture she is making will be interrupted several days.

$25,000 Issue of Script For Chartiers Valley

Scrip in the amount of $25,000 will be issued to merchants of Chartiers Valley within 10 days, it was announced last night at a meeting of the Exchange Association of Pennsylvania at the West End Board of Trade.

President Howard W. Miller appointed a committee to have the initial issue printed. M. J. Baker, vice president of the Seven Baker Brothers, offered his support, offering to advance the cash necessary to print the scrip.

Copies of the plan are to be distributed to merchants in McKees Rocks, Sheraden, Ingram, Crafton, Elliott, West End, South Side, Mt. Oliver, Carrick, Knoxville, Beltzhoover, Mt. Washington, Beechview, Brookline, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Greentree and other communities.

George L. Kinter, author of the plan, and Max U. Applebaum, vice president of the association, will speak before a joint meeting of the South Side, Knoxville, and Mt. Oliver businessmen's associations, to explain the plan.

The scrip will be loaned to those in legitimate business at the usual interest rate. The loans will be secured by the borrowers' stock of merchandise or other collateral. The borrower will use the scrip to meet his obligations and cash will be released to widen markets which, it is expected, will help conditions in general.

U. S. CONSIDERS PROSECUTION IN STOCK PROBE

Mitchell Scans Case Against Utilities, Banks, Brokers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A study of recent testimony before the Senate Banking Committee to determine if it reveals any law violations subject to criminal prosecution was initiated today by the Justice Department.

Copies of the testimony relating to the operations of various banking, utility and investment security houses" were called for yesterday by Attorney General Mitchell.

This was made known as the committee received evidence that the National City Bank of New York, forbidden by law to deal in its own securities, advanced credit for the purchase of its own stock through a brokerage house.

INSULL INQUIRY

The investigators also have inquired at length into the collapse of Insull companies, bringing into the testimony various New York and Chicago banks and Halsey, Stuart and Company, investment house.

Meanwhile, in New York, George Z. Medalie, United States attorney, asked Washington authorities for copies of the 1929 income tax return of Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank.

The investigation was launched as a result of the banker's testimony before the Senate Committee that in order to avoid paying an income tax in that year he sold stock in his bank to a relative at a loss of nearly $2,800,000. He said he repurchased the securities later.

No committee meeting was held today, but it will resume operations Monday with testimony from Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and Victor Schoepperle, vice president of the National City Company, the security selling affiliate of the National City Bank.

WHITNEY CALLED

Whitney has been called to give his views on regulation of the exchange in view of recent testimony.

Following the evidence on the stock sales of the National City Bank and its affiliate, Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, said today it strengthened his contention that his pending bank reform bill should be passed. Among other things it provides for divorcing banks and security affiliates.

Authority to continue the investigation through next session was requested by Senator Costigan (Dem.), of Colorado. Unless otherwise provided, the inquiry will end on March 4.

BANKS CLOSED IN MARYLAND

conference was followed by the Governor's prolamation and statement.

The hope was expressed by Gov. Ritchie that legislation would be enacted by Tuesday to permit the banks to reopen Wednesday "with ample facilities available for the needs of the people."

Two New Liquid Banks To Open in Michigan

DETROIT, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Definite progress toward a solution of Michigan's banking problem was seen today with the announcement by officials of the First National Bank and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce of the expected completion within a few days of plans to form two new banks here with wholly liquid assets.

Meanwhile two plans were advanced to provide an adequate medium of exchange during the holiday period, and to guard against similar conditions in the future.

One was a suggestion by Rudolph E. Reichert, state banking commissioner, to issue transferable certificates to the total amount of frozen assets in the banks. The second, introduced by State Senator Herbert P. Orr, a Caro (Mich.) banker, would set up a state reserve bank to function much as Federal Reserve banks now are designed to do, furnishing a regulatory check and a liquid reserve in times of stress.

MONACA QUIZ CALLS 20 MORE

Twenty subpenas were being served by county detectives today, summoning additional witnesses before the county grand jury Monday, when investigation of the Monaca Club is to be resumed by District Attorney Andrew T. Park in an effort to indict the proprietors of the closed Oakland resort.

The subpenas were said to be going to persons who were guests of the club the night it was raided and to tradesmen who furnished food and other supplies.

About 25 witnesses were examined by the grand jury a week ago. These included credit men from stores and representatives of telephone, gas, electric and other interests.

The 11 game table operators and waiters arrested in the raid and now in jail following their pleas of guilty in Criminal Court, were notified that they will be called before the grand jury. Although they were a unit in testifying John Healy, head waiter, was the only owner and manager of the club that they knew, they will be asked the same question again.

Weather Conditions.

The Colorado disturbance developed northeastward and is now central over Michigan (Detroit, 29.56 inches), and a trough of low pressure extends southwestward to another center over Texas (Dallas, 29.92). Pressure is high over the plateau (Winnemucca, Nev., 30.62), and a ridge extends eastward over the plains. Light to moderate rains or snows have occurred over the lake and central valleys, but weather is generally fair this morning over the plains and westward to the Pacific Coast. It is warmer in the Ohio Valley and Tennessee, and considerably colder in the plains and Central Rocky Mountains.

RADIO DELIGHTS SINGER

Lou McIlvain, or Louisa Machilvani, Pittsburgh's own opera singer, who sang Lenora last night in "Il Trovatore" with the International Opera Company in Syria Mosque, is enthusiastic over radio singing.

She made her radio debut Thursday night over WCAE.

Yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. M. Rush, of Heberton avenue, she stressed the radio as a new field for singers. She said:

"Even though the depression has taken the joke out of everything, there's no reason why a girl can't make a fortune in opera."

She cited opera singers, like Rosa Raisa, who have made fortunes, lost them, and made them again.

Sharpsburg Barter System Arranged

Sharpsburg's barter registration room will open next Monday morning in the Y. M. C. A., it was announced today by Edgar E. Brosius, heading a group of business men who are sponsoring the barter movement in co-operation with the Sharpsburg Rotary Club. E. I. Frey will be in charge of registration.

No fee will be charged for registration, and the service of the exchange will consist of listing all individuals who have goods or services to exchange.

Steals Pair of Shoes, Sentenced to 30 Days

John Murphy, 30, of 1930 Wrights way, was sent to jail for 30 days today in lieu of a $25 fine for stealing a pair of old shoes yesterday from the shoe repair shop of Charles Judikis, 131 South Twenty-first street. Magistrate J. J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court imposed sentence when Murphy admitted taking the shoes because he "needed some to keep my feet warm."

4,000 MAY JOIN IN BOETTCHER MANHUNT

Midnight Zero Hour For Abductors' Return Of Denver Man

DENVER, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—If Charles Boettcher, II, has not been released by his abductors at midnight tonight, police and volunteers will begin on Sunday a systematic combing of the city of Denver, Denver County and parts of three surrounding counties for the wealthy 31-year-old broker and his captors.

Midnight is the deadline set by Claude K. Boettcher, father of the scion of a pioneer Colorado family, for treating with the kidnapers, who have demanded $60,000 ransom. After that time, the elder Boettcher warned the kidnapers, through the press, that all promises he had made to pay the ransom were off and he would "take such steps as seem to me to be best."

Albert T. Clark, chief of police, and Carl S. Milliken, police commissioner, announced 4,000 men would take part in the hunt should it be necessary. The chief said search would be made of every home, warehouse and business building in the area known as Greater Denver.

The Rev. D. B. Dagwell, dean of the Cathedral of St. John's in the Wilderness, said he had handled several notes from the kidnapers to the victim's father, but did not know their contents.

Young Boettcher was kidnaped at midnight Sunday, February 12, from the yard of his home. A ransom note was thrust into the hands of his wife, soon to become a mother for the second time.

Bogus Rum Agents Hold Chicago Man for Ransom

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(INS.)—Kidnaped by two men who represented themselves as prohibition agents, Jerry Flynn, former night club proprietor, was being held prisoner today while his abductors treated for a ransom of $10,000.

The two kidnapers stopped Flynn and a friend, John P. Maloney, as they were leaving the former's home last night. Flashing gold stars, they said they were prohibition agents and ordered the two men into Flynn's automobile and directed that they drive to a police station.

A few blocks from Flynn's home the two abductors forced Maloney from the automobile and said they would go on to the police station without him. Later Maloney was able to find no trace of the abducted man at police headquarters.

Shortly after midnight John Flynn, the kidnaped man's brother, received a telephone call demanding $10,000 ransom. The voice said:

"We've got Jerry down in the basement. Get $10,000 ready if you want him."

The kidnaped man's wife early today received a telephone message which said Flyn's automobile would be found at a designated spot with a note on the seat. Police found the automobile and the note.

CHARGES WIFE URGED 'LEGGING

Because he could not give her enough money, his wife suggested that he be a bootlegger, Joseph Jefferson, 3923 Portman street, testified before Judge Elder W. Marshall, who granted him a divorce from Mrs. Eva Jefferson. He testified:

"I lost everything in 1928. My wife wanted to know why I didn't go out and be a bootlegger like other fellows and make real money. I gave her a maid and a chauffeur when I had money. When I lost it she refused to work."

He charged indignities.

Her husband choked her until she gasped for breath, Ethel Himberger, 18 Lenox avenue, Forest Hills, testified in her divorce suit against Oscar K. Himberger. Judge John P. Egan granted her a decree.

Mrs. Edna W. Heimert, 666 Washington road, who is suing George C. Heimert, haberdasher, 1437 Fifth avenue, for divorce, produced a witness before Judge Frank P. Patterson who testified to having seen Heimert leave his place of business, frequently at night, with a woman. Mrs. Heimert charged indignities.

Mrs. Roosevelt Drops Lone Drive to Capital

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt admits her discovery that a first lady's life is not her own.

Regretfully she has abandoned her plan for a solitary drive from New York to Washington in her own roadster the morning of March 3, accompanied by her two dogs.

Mrs. Roosevelt will accompany the President-elect and the official party on their trip to the capital by train.

She explained:

"I have changed my plans because my husband wants me to be with him and his guests on the trip. There will be rather a large party and so naturally I have agreed to follow his wishes."

Mrs. Roosevelt unexpectedly announced last night that she will make her farewell radio address next Friday—the eve of her husband's inaugural as President—over an N. B. C. network.

Her address last night on "Married Women as Wage Earners" had been announced as her valedictory radio speech.

In her talk last night, Mrs. Roosevelt upheld the right of married women to work, and said that if women with money wished to work, that was nobody's business.

DOOMED JUMBO GETS REPRIEVE

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Daisy, Hawaii's bored elephant, was granted a 60-day reprieve from the death sentence today.

Persons seeking another chance for the elephant nobody wants started writing to the newspapers and telephoning the Park Board, so the board postponed the execution.

Daisy, in the Waikiki Zoo, became fractious recently and was chained to a tree. The Humane Society had proposed death to save her from idleness and ennui, but was silent in the face of protests.

Parade Off, Boys Witness 'Big Drive'

This mornings downpour of rain made it necessary to call off the Sun-Telegraph carrier boys' parade that had been scheduled to take place. Headed by the Langley High School Band and escorted by a troop of Boy Scouts of America, with flying flags, it has been arranged to march the boys from the Sun-Telegraph office to the Fulton Theater, where the youngsters had been invited by Manager L. B. Cool to attend a showing of "The Big Drive."

The weather did not stop the youngsters, 700 of them, from seeing "The Big Drive."

Blow by Friend Brings Back Man's Voice

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Roland A. Wright, Negro, came to police headquarters looking for a friend he wanted to thank for knocking him unconscious.

The story that Roland related was that seven years ago he became deaf and dumb because of a blow on the head in a boxing bout.

Thursday night he was waving his hands in a silent dispute with a friend when the latter struck him. When Wright regained consciousness and gave vocal expression to his anger, the friend disappeared rapidly.

Now Wright would like to tell him how much he appreciates the blow, but the friend has not been seen since the dumb man spoke.

New Inspection For Bandit Suspects

Harry and Lawson Christy, brothers, held in the county jail in connection with 10 holdups and with the shooting of Dorothy Ulm, 21, McKeesport school teacher, in an attempted holdup, will be given another "standup" in county detective headquarters Monday.

Eva Hundertmark, of 92 Coverdale street, yesterday identified the suspects as the bandits who held up an automobile party on Curry road and robbed her of diamonds and a handbag, according to county detectives.

EARTH SLIDES NEAR BRIDGE

Traffic at the Pittsburgh end of Browns Bridge was halted late yesterday by a slide of about five tons of earth and rock. The debris tumbled onto the street car tracks, tying up traffic in both directions.

Pittsburgh Railways Company workmen cleared the inbound track after an hour's work. Homestead and Pittsburgh police established one-way routes.

City laborers worked all day yesterday to clear tons of rock that slid from the Mt. Washington hillside to Sycamore street, near the South Hills street car tunnels.

Welfare Conference Names Pittsburghers

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Miss Alice M. Hill, Harrisburg, last night was elected president of the Pennsylvania Conference on Social Welfare. H. A. Waldkoenig, of Pittsburgh, was chosen secretary.

Other officers elected were Wilbur F. Maxwell, secretary of the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, first vice president, and John E. Malone, Lancaster, second vice president.

The executive committee includes the Rev. H. J. Gilbert, Pittsburgh, the retiring president.

SCHOOL CODE DELAY SOUGHT

Postponement until the regular legislative session of action on the revised school code now being considered by the House Committee on Education was suggested today by Miss Hannah Patterson, chairman of the Allegheny County Committee on School Legislation, which represents 10 civic and educational organizations.

The suggestion for delay is based on the ground that the proposed code contains many controversial points, and also that if introduced in this session it would compete with many conflicting issues. Miss Patterson said:

"The code undoubtedly provides an excellent basis for eventual legislation that will improve the foundations of Pennsylvania education, but the impression I carried away from Harrisburg last Wednesday was that no one is in favor of the measure as it now stands."

NO TIME TO TALK WITH HIS WIFE

SLAYER FREED, SPURNS WIFE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Spurning reconciliation with his wife, Coast Guardsman Harvey Parry sought today to forget the tragedy that led to his acquittal of murdering Mrs. Parry's admirer, a riding master.

Parry, who pleaded the "unwritten law," wept yesterday when a jury of married men cleared him of guilt in the shooting of Garnet Brotherton. He had testified Brotherton taunted him about his (Brotherton's) friendship with Mrs. Parry.

The wife, Janet, sent Parry a note pleading for reconciliation. Crumpling the paper in his fist, he said:

"Not a chance. I'm through with that woman forever."

After the verdict, Parry, a warrant officer, was summoned back to duty with the Coast Guard.

6 Divorces Granted, One Decree Sought

Divorces have been granted to Teressa Clark from Raymond C. Clark, Alice D. McKinley from Ernest W. McKinley, Fred F. Simmons from Garnett W. Simmons, Margaret L. Peck from Forest M. Peck, Anna Moscowitz from Samuel Moscowitz and to Carolyn H. Loranger from Theodore C. Loranger.

CURTAILMENT SCHEME HELD NEEDLESS

Education Association Plans Revealed at Convention City

By JOEL DAVID WOLFSOHN
Universal Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 25.—Teachers stand ready to help carry forward a program of economic reconstruction, but they will resist any effort to create a peasant class in the nation, by curtailing educational facilities.

This was the challenge today of educators who have gathered here for the sixty-third annual convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association.

At the same time it was authoritatively stated that the emergency commission on education, which has been studying the situation with regard to closing schools and cutting school service, would probably be made permanent so that it can continue its work.

EMERGENCY STUDY

The emergency in education has been a subject of grave concern to educators all over the land. The commission, of which Dr. John K. Norton, of Columbia University, is chairman, devoted much time to a study of the condition. Tomorrow the committee will meet for a final consideration of the report before submitting it to the convention Tuesday. Norton said:

"There are those who believe in limiting education, who envisage following the European system of education in a broad and cultural way only for the classes, while the masses are given but a taste of it.

"Many ask whether our boys and girls should have a right to attend high school, or whether such right should be limited by the wealth of the parents.

"Some say economic resources are so limited there must be a permanent lowering of educational opportunity offered children. They have an idea we have gone too high. The committee will challenge that view.

AMPLE RESOURCES

"Our resources include every essential to maintain the American standards of living, including educational opportunity for all children. The present situation is not due to lack of resources, but to the failure to use the resources. In this failure, methods by which industry and finance have been conducted must bear a large share of the blame.

"We calal upon those who sit in key places on business and financial control to spened less time in organizing economy leagues which indiscriminately strike at every public service, such as the schools which people have created for their children.

"The fact which should absorb the attention of many of those most active in demanding that essential school service should be discontinued, is that poor management is one of the prime causes which has reduced the yearly income of the American people from $95,000,000,000 to $45,000,000,000. Restore this lost income and it will not be difficult to pay for needed educational services."

READY FOR BATTLE

And a warning of the impending battle against those who would destroy the schools came in these words from Dr. Norton:

"The teachers stand ready to join with industrial and financial leaders and with all other groups in carrying forward any sound program for economic reconstruction.

"They will oppose with every resource at their command, both as citizens and as teachers, the effort of any selfish group to create a peasant class in the United States."

Scribe Actors Ready For Gridiron Fete

Pittsburgh newspapermen went to work this morning more or less wall-eyed after an all night rehearsal, putting the finishing touches to the many skits that feature the gridiron dinner in William Penn Hotel tonight, under the auspices of the Amen Corner Club.

The directors put the "actors" through a stiff pace until the production met their satisfaction. Many unusual, and perhaps revealing stunts, "panning" of figures in public life, are promised.

Walsh Courted Widow Secretly for 3 Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(Universal.)—The romance of Mrs. Maria Nieves Truffin and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, incoming attorney general, who are to be married Monday in Havana, began more than three years ago.

They met at the home of William Wallace, Jr., New York lawyer, at a dinner party.

Attracted by Mrs. Truffin, widow of a Cuban banker and sugar grower, the Senator went to Havana to press the courtship.

Senator Walsh has spent the last three Christmas holidays in Havana. He also made a special trip to Cuba last June to visit Mrs. Truffin.

The courtship was kept secret. Senator Walsh told his colleagues when he left Washington that he was going to Florida to play golf. He chartered an airplane and flew to Havana from Miami.

From friends of Senator Walsh it was learned today the 73-year-old Senator was as happy as a schoolboy when he departed for his marriage to Mrs. Truffin, who is in her fifties.

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—(Universal.)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, and Senora Maria Nieves Perez Chaumont Truffin, wealthy Cuban widow, will be married in the American embassy here on Monday.

The wedding will be a civil ceremony, the bride announced last night. United States Ambassador Guggenheim will act as witness for Walsh, Chief of Staff Gen. Herera for Senora Truffin.

CHURCHGOERS PREPARE FOR BEGINNING OF LENT

NOON SERVICES TO BE HELD AT TRINITY

Church people throughout the Pittsburgh district will spiritually groom themselves tomorrow for the coming Lenten season of pentinence and prayer, fasting and self-denial. March 1 is Ash Wednesday, and many churches are planning a pre-Easter series of midweek Lenten meetings.

Lenten noon-day services will begin in Trinity Cathedral at 12:30 Wednesday and continue daily through April 14, Good Friday. Speakers scheduled include: Bishop Alexander Mann; the Rev. Dr. W. F. Shero, Christ Church, Greensburg; the Rev. H. P. Pullin, St. Stephen's Church, McKeesport; the Rev. F. C. P. Hurd, Church of the Advent, Jeannette; the Rev. Dr. E. J. Van Etten, Calvary; the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, formerly of Emmanuel Church, Boston, Mass.; the Rev. Dr. Percy G. Kammerer, Avon, Conn.; the Rev. Dr. William F. Peirce, Gambier, O.; the Very Rev. Dr. Kirk B. O'Ferrall, St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit, Mich., and Dean N. R. H. Moor.

LENTEN SERIES

A series of Thursday evening Lenten services begin March 2 in the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Forbes street and Murray avenue, with Dean Moor, of Trinity Cathedral, as speaker. Other ministers who will preach in the series are the Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, Sixth United Presbyterian; the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, Shadyside Presbyterian; the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, East End Christian; the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, East Liberty Presbyterian, and Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

During Holy Week, the Sixth Presbyterian, the Third United Presbyterian and the Asbury Methodist Episcopal churches will hold union services.

LECTURES TO START

Marshall Bidwell will deliver a series of Saturday evening lectures on music during the Lenten season in Carnegie Music Hall beginning next Saturday, on "What is Program Music"? Subsequent topics are: "Early Attempts at Musical Tone-Painting," "Beethoven and Program Music," "Romantic Composers," "The Melodic Genius of Bach" and "The Lyric Style of Brahms".

A mid-week Lenten service will be held Wednesday in the Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran Church, Allentown, at 7:45 p. m. On Thursday at the same hour a sermon, "To the Glory of Jesus", will be preached.

THE FEBRUARY Furniture Sale

Just two days more of the 15% discount applied to furniture prices already the lowest in modern times.

Don't let this grand chance slip by, possibly forever, without making some small addition to the improvement and completeness of your home—a comfortable new chair, a sofa, or perhaps some new bedroom pieces.

Furniture prices are unbelievably low. The February discount makes them still lower. And our Deferred Payment Plan, with only a small first payment required, makes it possible to spread this low cost over a period of months until it is almost unnoticed.

There's no question about the desirability of the furniture here. The thousands who have visited these floors since the first of February have been unanimous in the verdict that Horne's has the furniture, as far as quality, beauty, taste, modernness and real values are concerned.

You've only to step on this floor to be aware of the difference. The furniture here is light and graceful in design and sized to fit our smaller homes and present-day architecture. Pieces are chosen individually for their place and purpose, rather than en suite.

The February Sale deserves the fullest investigation of everyone with the remotest interest in new furniture. Make the most of the two remaining days. The February discount will positively be withdrawn February 28.

Studio Couch, $27.50

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Almost none of Pittsburgh's social registerite younger set was seen at the opening last night of the International Grand Opera Company in Syria Mosque. But a few of Pittsburgh's most faithful patrons of music were there.

Belonging to this group were Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., long a supporter of Pittsburgh's Symphony Orchestra; Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., Mrs. Samuel Harden Church and Mrs. William Watson Smith, all box-holders. I saw Col. Church, too, sitting behind Mrs. Church, and chatting with Maurice Frank, the impresario.

Wears Black

Mrs. Church was in black with silver outlining the square decolletage of her gown; Mrs. McClintic wore a white ermine wrap, and Mrs. Smith was in gray chiffon.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, another music enthusiast, was there, wearing a smart gown of bright hyacinth blue rough crepe, and the Holdship sisters, Margaret and Caroline, in blue velvet and pale blue lace, members of Sewickley's smart younger set.

Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance was there with Eloise Dorrance, her blonde young daughter, who wore black velvet. The William Penn Snyders came from Sewickley to the opera.

Singer's Friends

The huge house was packed with friends of Lou McIlvain, who sang the role of Leonora. Her brother and his wife, the Grier McIlvains, her sister, Mrs. Mary McIlvain Geddis, and three aunts of the artist, Miss Ida McIlvain, Miss Jennie McIlvain and Miss Ella McIlvain, all of Monongahela City, who with Mrs. Jessie Battles, David Whittingham and Clegg Munroe, all three of Cleveland, occupied a box.

Mrs. McIlvain wore pale peach heavy lace, Mrs. Geddis, bright blue crepe, and Mrs. Battles a striking gown of black crepe having a cape of silver.

Others I noticed were Mrs. Earl Reed who with her sleek black hair looked ever so Spanish in orange-red crepe, and Mrs. Jacob S. Payton.

Friends of Lou McIlvain were there from Charleston, W. Va., Beaver, Pa., and all the surrounding towns.

Wedding Plans

The coming week will bring two weddings of interest in addition to that wedding of weddings this afternoon, that of Jane Marshall, daughter of the C. D. Marshalls, and Aiken W. Fisher, son of the Chester G. Fishers, to take place at 5:30 o'clock in the Marshall home.

One of the brides of next week will be Julia Isabelle Bown, daughter of the C. Elmer Bowns, who will marry Robert Hood Barth, son of the Carl H. Barths, of Lakewood, O., Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the chapel of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

The ceremony, to be performed by the Rev. Robert Atkinson, will be attended by only members of the two families.

Olive Bown, who will be home from Wellesley College, will be her sister's only attendant, and Wade Barth, of Lakewood, O., will be his brother's best man.

A reception for the families will follow in the Bown home.

On Monday Virginia Dolores Bily, daughter of the Edward S. Bilys, will marry Raymond Gerard Flannnery, son of Mrs. Joseph M. Flannery, in St. Philomena's Church.

Edgewood Club To Present Musicale

The Edgewood Country Club will present these artists tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 at the club: Jessie Yuille Yon, soprano, accompanied by Beulah Taylor Marston; Oscar Davis, violinist, accompanied by Ferdinand Fillion; James Pastorius, baritone, accompanied by Martha Meyers Murdock.

The program has been arranged by Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, of Churchill road, Wilkinsburg.

Report on War Cure Meeting To Be Given

A report of the recent cause and cure of war conference will be given by Mrs. J. M. Simpson and Mrs. F. C. Sinn will speak on the city manager plan at a meeting of the Twenty-fifth Ward League of Women Voters on Tuesday. The meeting will be in the North Side Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Charles F. Huber, chairman of the Twelfth Ward League of Women Voters, which meets Monday in the Lemington School, has announced that the entire period will be devoted to a study of the city manager plan, with Mrs. R. P. Keenoy as speaker.

Mr. Lissfelt

The International Grand Opera Company presented Verdi's "Il Trovatore" in Syria Mosque last night. Opera-starved Pittsburgh did its best to prove to the managers that our citizens are willing to patronize them if they can be reasonable enough in these difficult times and meet the condition of our purses. The result was a full house with standing room only available at the last hour and generous enthusiasm for the musicians and a tribute to generous management.

There is surely no more grateful music for singers than the old standby tunes of "Il Trovatore." The curtain is hardly up until we are met with beautiful melody and thrilling choruses and they continue for hours. Director Gabriele Simeoni was a careful captain for the orchestra and cast and led them through the intricacies of score and play with a strong hand.

No less skillful was the stage director, Altieri, in his groupings of gypsies and soldiers and the stage effects he was able to attain with limited means of the Mosque stage. Costumes were attractive in the conventional grand opera style and the orchestra was adequate.

Of the cast much interest centered in the prima donna, Lou McIlvain, who as "Leonora" makes her operatic debut in her home town. She has studied well since last heard in Pittsburgh, has some vibrant high notes, and is quite a handsome figure in this part. Rosita Fordieri's "Azucena," a most sympathetic role, was well applauded. She has fire in her declamation, a good rhythmic swing in her singing, and is a convincing actress. Maria Olla acquitted herself favorably in the brief episode for "Inez."

Edward Ransom was by far the leading singer among the men and his "Manrico" had several brilliant spots, the "Di Quella Pira" and his scenes with "Azucena." It is a manly tenor voice of great clarity and the creation of his role is hampered only by stilted gesture.

Martino Rossi was a formidable rival as "Count di Luna," singing his part with great ease and understanding of every situation. The minor parts of "Ferrando" and "Ruiz" were in the voices of old routine players, Nino Ruisi and Francesco Curci, and were securely placed.

The chorus is a Pittsburgh product, and we should have shown these out-of-town stars that we have better material in this town. Surely, of all the students of voice and all the choral singers we possess, a more robust group could have offered its services. When a man like Maurice Frank now places opportunity at our doors for a civic opera company the town's singers should all turn out and do their utmost to make it worth the trouble.

Today "Hansel and Gretel" and "I Pagliacci" is the matinee bill, and tonight George Trabert, another Pittsburgher, will be starred as the "Duke" in "Rigoletto."

Voters Increase City Manager Meetings

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

With the date for the city manager plan legislative hearings only a little more than two weeks off—March 14 is the date—the Allegheny County League of Women Voters has increased its schedule of neighborhood meetings to stimulate interest in urging passage of the legislation.

The league is sponsoring organization of the women's division of the Municipal Charter Committee, which has arranged a mass meeting at Syria Mosque on March 9 to be addressed by Charles P. Taft, II, of Cincinnati, son of the former President.

Attendance at both the mass meeting and the legislative hearing in Harrisburg is urged at the neighborhood gatherings, the schedule for which includes several on Tuesday. Among these are meetings with Mrs. R. L. Polk, Dalzell place, Mrs. D. I. Kirk, speaker; Mrs. Bertha T. Dean, Darlington road, Mrs. Paul F. Shupp, speaker; Mrs. George S. Daugherty, Callery street, Mrs. D. I. Kirk, speaker.

Listed for Wednesday are meetings in Mrs. Stuart L. Henderson's home, Ben Hur street; Mrs. L. J. Peters' home, Beechwood boulevard, and on Thursday, with Mrs. J. L. Peoples, Shady avenue, and Mrs. A. G. Meuhlbronner, Waldorf street.

Daughter of Utah Governor Weds In East

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—With the carillon of the Washington Memorial Chapel playing a wedding march, Miss Hazel Elaine Blood, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Henry H. Blood, of Utah, was married yesterday to David J. Ellison, of New York. The Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, rector of the chapel, read the Episcopal service.

The chapel, dedicated as a national shrine, was cleared of all sightseers and all doors were locked during the ceremony.

The bride's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Russell H. Blood, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Iverson, Washington, cousins of the bride, and Miss Frances Livingston, of New York City, a friend of the Governor's daughter, were the only guests.

The Governor and Mrs. Blood were unable to attend because the Legislature is in session.

The party drove to Philadelphia for dinner, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ellison left for New York. The honeymoon will be spent in New England and they will make their home in Forest Hills, Long Island.

The bridegroom is connected with a New York firm. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Ellison, of Layton, Utah.

At the monthly meeting of the Beth Shalom Sisterhood Monday evening Mrs. Abe Caplan, Mrs. L. Simon, Mrs. M. A. Rosenberg, Mrs. M. Kwall and Mrs. Henry Cohen will be hostesses. A musical program has been arranged by Mrs. J. Zeidman.

Dormont Drama Group to Give Colonial Tea

On Monday afternoon the drama department of Dormont New Century Club will have a colonial tea at the clubhouse under auspices of the ways and means committee of the department. The program includes a group of violin selections by Mrs. Freeman Hammond, vocal numbers by Miss Bertha Schmidt and the playlet, "A Birthday Party," by Mrs. Petrie Abbott, Mrs. J. W. Young, Jr., Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Ralph Coltman, Mrs. P. E. Corning and Mrs. Brice Owens.

The literature department will have on its program Tuesday Mrs. Frank Orr Johnson, who will discuss "India," her native land. Mrs. H. F. Starke will give current events.

At the regular club meeting on Friday the dramatic department will present "The Light of the Cross." Special Easter music will be an added attraction.

Democratic Club To Be Active at Inauguration

Mrs. J. Wood Clark, who is representing the National Women's Democratic Club at the inaugural festivities in Washington next week, announces that on Thursday and Friday there is to be a conference of the members in the headquarters, and on Thursday a luncheon; Friday afternoon, a tea honoring Mrs. Roosevelt, and that evening a dinner, all in conjunction with the club.

Delegates from Pittsburgh going with Mrs. Clark include Mrs. William Turner, Miss Mary Kennelly, Mrs. T. T. Quail, Miss Alice McKee Fagan, Miss Margaret Leech, Mrs. John P. Kileen, Miss Julia Doyle and Mrs. Thomas Connolly.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. DuPuy also will attend the inaugural ball.

* * *

A card party for the benefit of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost will be held Monday afternoon and evening in 5246 Clearwin avenue, West View. Mrs. George Born is chairman of the affair.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

An automobile can be a white elephant, Lou McIlvain, Pittsburgh's own opera singer, appearing with the International Grand Opera Company this week-end at Syria Mosque, found out.

When she sailed from Naples for Tunis, she and her party took an automobile along. But the automobile gave them trouble when they arrived in Tunis.

There was no way, it seemed, to get the automobile off the ship. After many negotiations, the opera singer hired, at her own expense, a man with a crane to get the auto into Tunis!

* * *

When she speaks of singing in Africa, Miss McIlvain says she's sure many of her hearers have a picture of her singing in the wilds to a crowd of converted cannibals.

* * *

Here's a style note that's the latest whiff of what's smart for spring. I saw Lydia Irish arriving at the Junior League clubrooms, wearing a smart tailored pearl-gray spring suit, a soft gray felt hat with the suggestion of the mannish mode. And here's the smartest touch of all—her blouse was of black satin.

* * *

Mary Franklin Robinson is another favoring the mode for spring. While shopping the other day, she wore a gray suit with a soft gray fur collar and a pert little gray felt hat with a veil.

Historical Society To Hear Readings, Music, Papers

Music, readings and two papers will constitute the program for Monday's meeting of the Woman's Historical Society. Mrs. Jean L. Ross will have "Pennsylvania in Verse and Song" as her topic, and Mrs. W. E. Gorsuch will describe the Washington Monument at Alexandria, Va. Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger and Mrs. H. E. Frederick will read poems appropriate to the season and Mrs. S. H. Fuller will sing, accompanied by Mrs. John Esler.

* * *

Miss Whipple

Miss Kathryn Whipple is chairman of the dance committee for the Grace Martin School dance, Friday evening, in the school reception rooms. This is a Parry picture.

* * *

The pre-Lenten card party scheduled for Tuesday afternoon by Branch 267, L. C. B. A., will be under the chairmanship of Mrs. Margaret T. Byrnes. It's to take place in the Oppenheim-Collins auditorium.

Outlook Alliance Will Give Literary Luncheon

The Outlook Alliance is to have a literary luncheon on Thursday at the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. S. J. Corbett, chairman of the literature committee, will present the Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, whose subject will be "The Poetry of Life." Mrs. Charles M. Law has been elected as director to fill the unexpired term of the late Mrs. G. H. Baskerville.

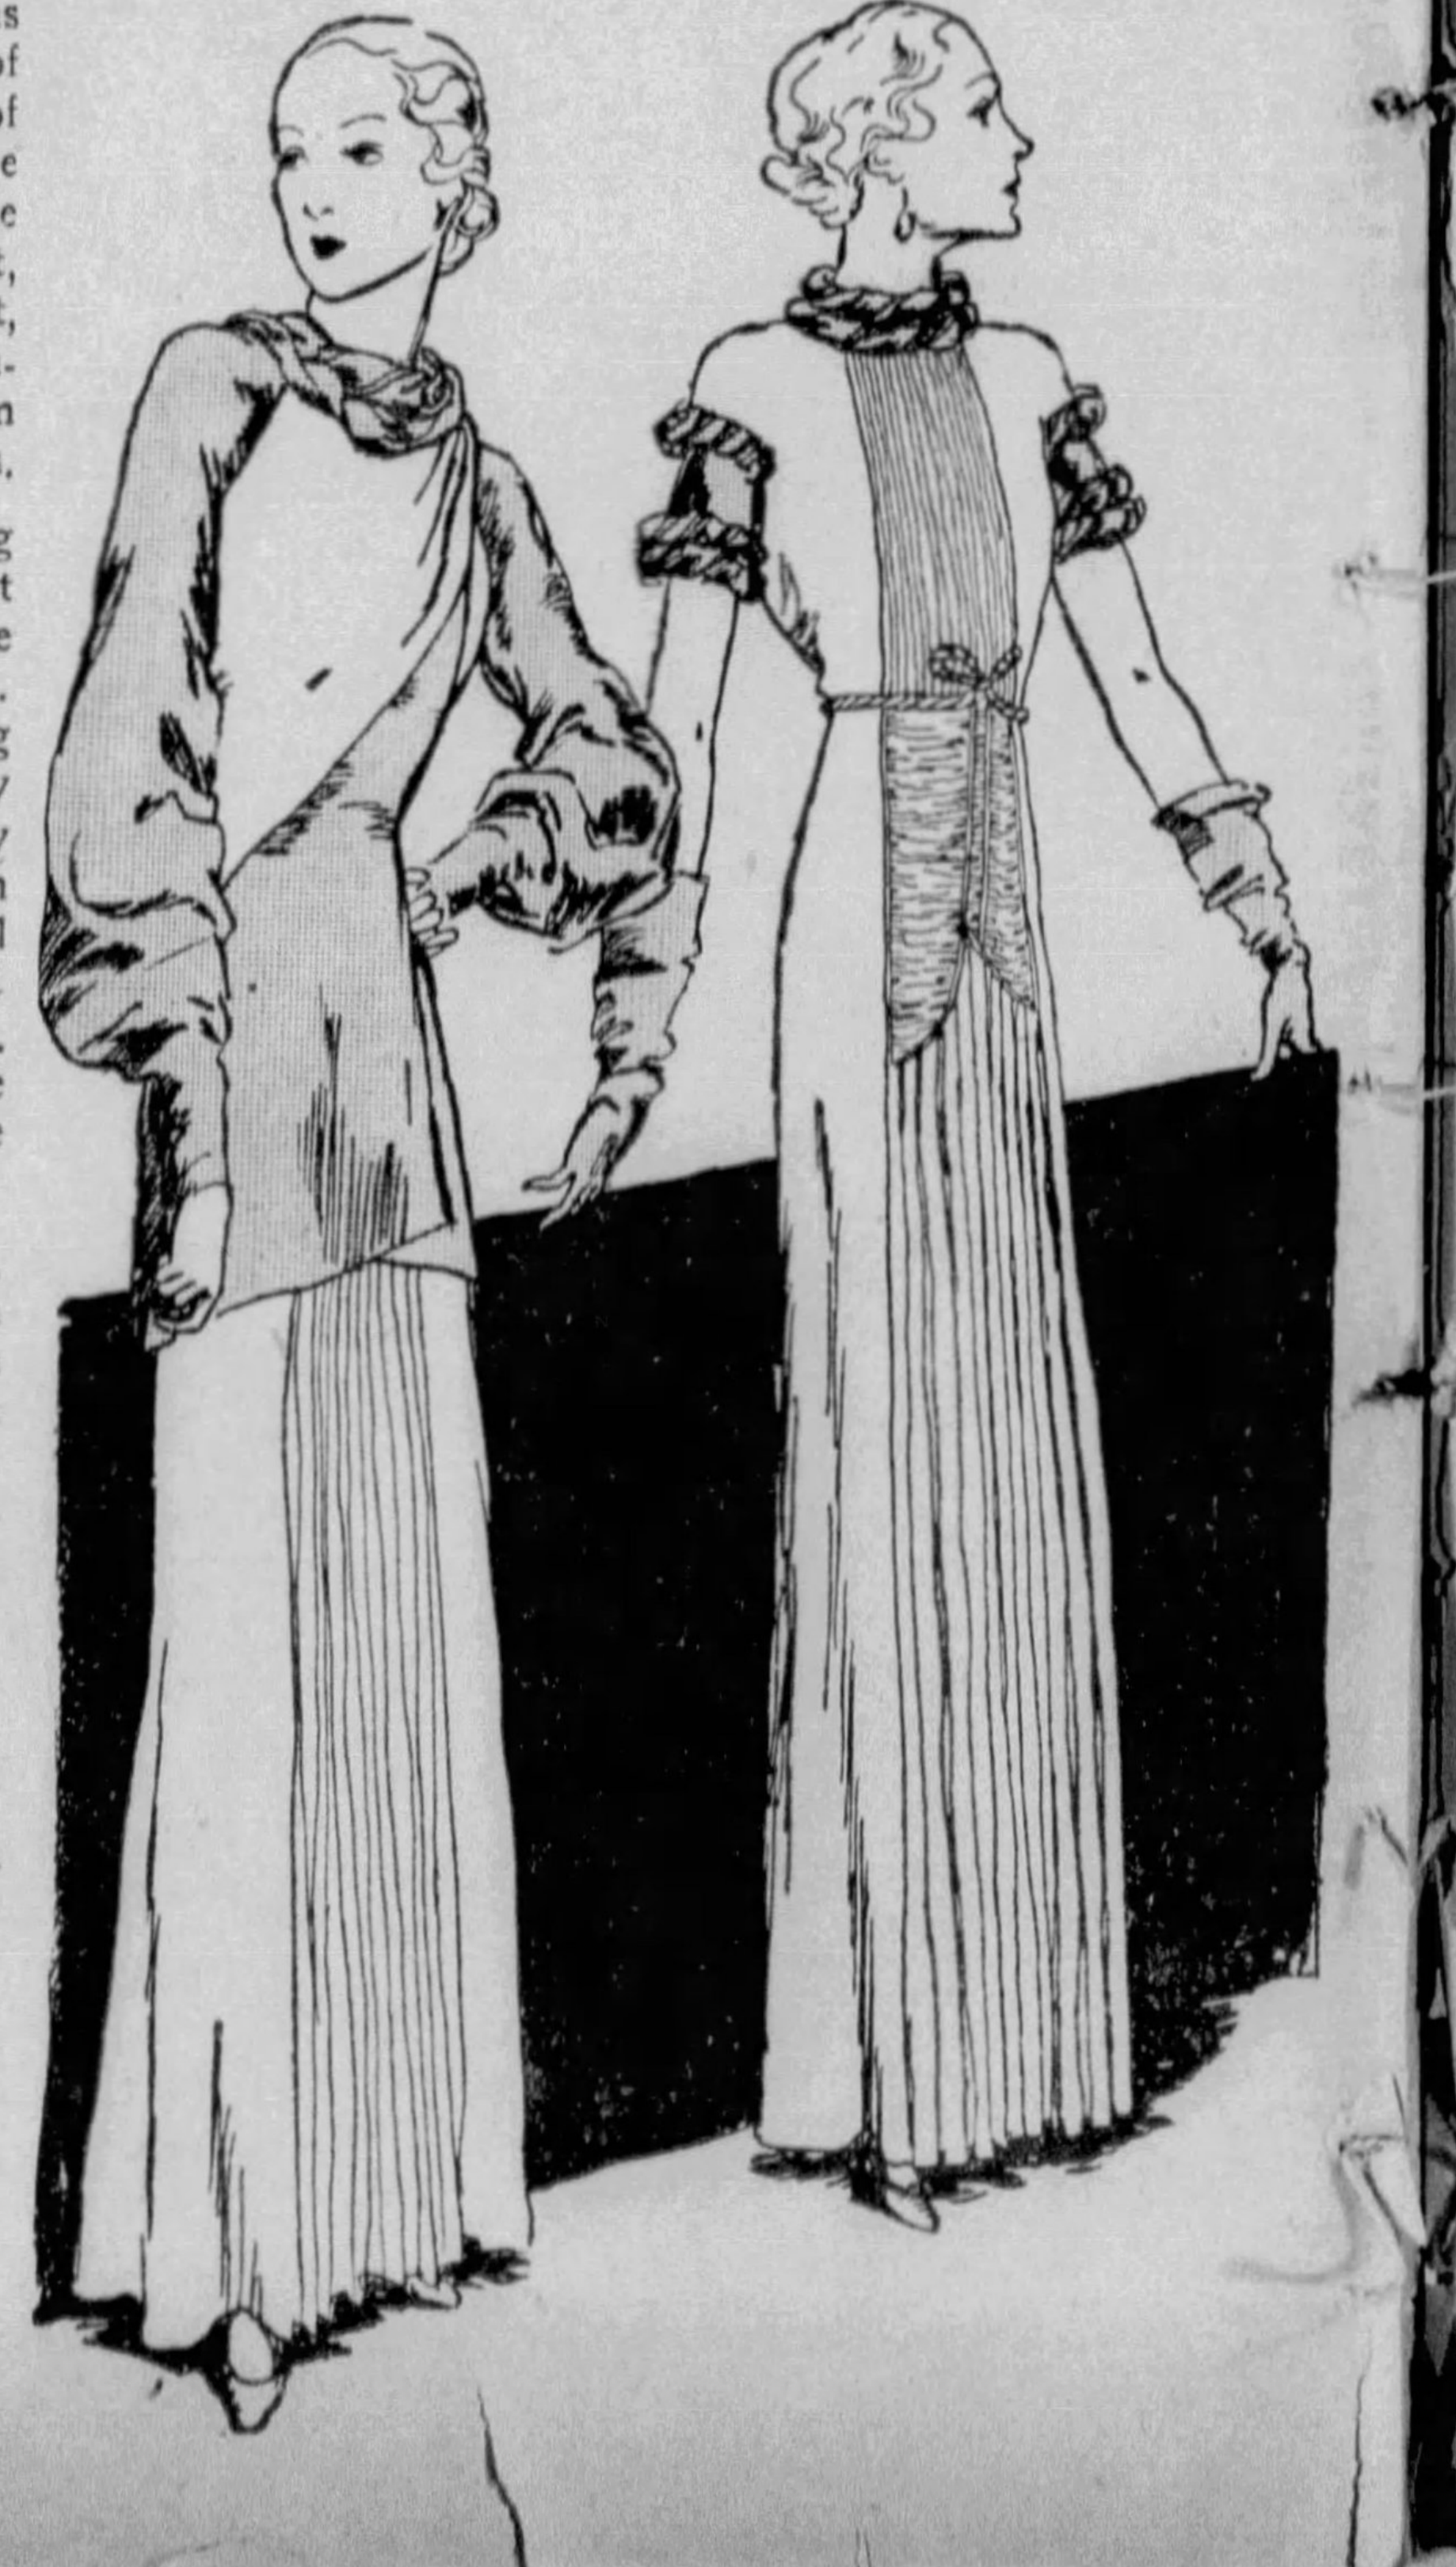
Langley P. T. A. Will Honor Founders

At the founders' day program to be presented by the Langley Parent-Teacher Association on Tuesday, Mrs. Helen Glenn Tyson, assistant deputy of the State Department of Welfare will speak on "Safeguarding Childhood Through This Crisis." Special music will be furnished by a quartet composed of Miss Angela Cossolia, Roy Hodgdon, Mrs. Ann Thompson and Walter Thompson, Miss Eleanor Hodgdon accompanying.

An enrollment of parents will be made at the meeting for the following parent education classes: March 6, "Understanding the Adolescent," F. E. Flickinger; March 13, "Problems of the High School Girl," Miss Tirza Marshall; March 20, "Problems of the High School Boy," the Rev. J. D. Van Horn; March 27, "Concerning Parents," the Rev. Daniel J. O'Shea.

Dr. Manuel C. Elmer, of the University of Pittsburgh, will address the Allison Unit of the Wilkinsburg P. T. A., Tuesday evening, speaking on "The Home." The Music Club, under the direction of Miss Carmela Stairs, will sing.

VELVET REMAINS POPULAR IN THE SMART SPRING MODELS



VELVET CARRIES on as a spring fashion. In spite of the fact that nearly a third of all the costumes shown in the big fashion houses during the winter were made of velvet, or trimmed with velvet, neither the designers themselves nor their clients seem to have tired of velvet styles.

* * *

ONE OF the interesting phases of the recent velvet fashions is the way they have changed during the seasons. Where an entire dress and long evening wrap were formerly both made of velvet, now they are fashioned of a combination of velvet with another material—or perhaps two other materials. Color, too, has changed. Often as not two or three colors appear now in the same velvet costume.

* * *

A PROMINENT designer, always a color expert, has a special way of her own with velvet. She uses it in small quantities but always in warm colors, playing it against a background of silk or wool in cold tones.

* * *

IN HER dress and coat evening outfit in today's sketches, she uses two warm red, in velvet, in combination with a pale, cool apple green crepe de chine. The dress is of the silk, with velvet at the shoulders and neck; the coat is entirely of velvet.

* * *

THE VELVET rolls about the throat of the frock appear above the neckline of the coat, and serve as its collar as well. They are of the darker red—the same tone which fashions the larger portion of the fabric. There is a diagonal streak across the front of the coat in lighter red.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Morals and Good Manners Have Not Changed

Are 1933 morals different from 1833 morals?

And is it swanky and modern to use cuss words?

Grandma has a daughter who thinks it is; or, at least, that's her alibi for using them, Grandma is wondering if it is true—and if it is, just what this world is coming to!!!!

Dear Elsie:

I want to ask your advice about a matter that I suppose I should have handled years ago myself. Maybe I am at fault, but I wish you could tell me what you think about it.

This is it. I have a daughter, and she is married and has two lovely sons. One is 11 years old and the other is 7.

At present they are living with me, as it has been hard for her husband to take care of them, with work so scarce. He is a very good man, and if things weren't in such bad shape he would be doing fine. But she is resentful of everything, and everything I do for the boys is criticized.

And the bad part of it is that she uses profane language all the time. She seems to think it is "modern" to talk that way. Just the other day the oldest boy said to me, "Gee, Gram, I wish mother wouldn't swear so much! Can't you call her on it? She's your child!"

So I did, one day, and she gave me a dangerous look and said she would talk as she pleased. It worries me. I don't know what to think of it.

DISLIKES PROFANITY

I was raised very strictly, myself, and for that reason I try to make allowances for the way I feel about it, but it doesn't seem right or necessary.

My daughter seems to think that "people talk like that nowadays." Do they? It seems really terrible. I don't want to be just an old fogey, as she probably thinks I am, but what is the world coming to if such talk is common? My parents would turn over in their graves if they thought that such talk had gotten to be the fashion.

Maybe you can give me some advice. Perhaps I don't get the right angle on it, myself. I certainly wasn't raised to think such talk was "smart." I didn't raise my daughter to think so, either. But, plainly, she thinks so now. She always laughs when the younger boy "breaks loose" once in a while.

Is it modern to swear? I don't think much of "modern" ways, if it is; but what can I do? GRANDMA.

HAVE NOT CHANGED

Of course it isn't modern, my dear. It's just a form of smartness for showoffs. As a matter of fact—though the news may shock you, Grandma—there have been lady cursers since the world began.

But don't worry! The world isn't going to the dogs! Morals and good manners haven't changed, just because we travel in airplanes instead of stage-coaches, or wear short skirts instead of Street Sweepers. There is as much real fineness in 1933, and real fineness is as much appreciated, as in 1883. But there are always people who imagine that freedom gives them a license to go in for being Rough and Rowdy.

If your daughter wants to join that gang there isn't much that you can do. She's a grown woman. But she needn't kid herself that she's keeping step with 1933, because she isn't. However don't scold her. That will only make her think she is being picked on. Try loving her, and appealing to her pride in her little boys.

Remember the old saying "Honey will catch more flies than vinegar?" It's still true, Grandma.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Reading Opponents' Bids

The language of bidding at Contract Bridge is both interesting and precise. Players who understand the values of the cards they hold can quite accurately picture for their partners both honor-trick strength and distribution. Equally, if their opponents have their ears correctly attuned, they can establish listening-posts and sometimes, after a number of opposing bids, enter the bidding practically devoid of honor strength or, as in today's hand, entirely void of it, and come out, if not—as was the case with Mr. Paul L. Morton, of Richmond Highlands, Washington—with the making of a Slam, at least with the acceptance of a paying penalty, rather than a greater loss. I do not recommend Mr. Morton's bidding to anyone who is not equipped to read the adverse bidding and to draw the very fine inference which brought him success.

Mr. Morton furnished me these notes on the bidding and play:

"1—Always on the lookout for the breaks which make Contract so interesting, I began to figure on a Defensive bid, when South made this bid of five clubs. He had already shown five diamonds and four hearts. To justify his Opening bid, he would need the Ace of both black suits or the Ace-King of one. I felt sure that with both Aces he would bid notrump, as he watched carefully for honor points. With the Ace-King of spades, he would have bid that suit instead of clubs. But he must have at least two losers in the black suits or he would have bid his Slam at once, in view of North's strong support. Both North and South bid freely on strong hands, but are extremely hard to force when holding 'busts.'

"2—If South had four clubs, North could not support the suit. If North had four of the top six, he would probably have shown the suit. I now felt sure that West had not more than one club, and was probably void: also that he held the Ace of spades. North surely held four hearts; probably also four diamonds and three clubs. Six spades looked like a good risk, especially since neither North nor South bid notrump, but the clubs would not be left in, and West might make a significant Double.

"3—A Double would only give away the distribution.

"4—Shoot the works!

"South led the King of diamonds, which was trumped, and a club returned, trumped in the Dummy, and the Ace of spades led. When the King and Knave fell, the contract was assured. Two hearts were trumped in the closed hand and two clubs more in the Dummy; then the closed hand was put in with the second diamond to lead clubs until North ruffed with the lone outstanding trump. East now had one trump left to get back in the lead, and the remaining clubs were good."

I am frank to confess that while this reasoning proved correct in this case, I would be loathe, indeed, to try it myself, and certainly would never dream of recommending it to others. However, nothing succeeds like success, and success rewarded the brilliant drawing of what proved to be accurate inferences.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South—Dealer.

North:
♠ 2
♡ A 10 7 5 4 3
♢ A 4 2
♣ 10 8 3

South:
♠ A Q J 10 9
♡ 8
♢ 3
♣ A K J 9 7 2

Answer—The bidding:

South	North
1 ♣	1 ♡
2 ♠	3 ♡ (1)
3 ♠	5 ♣ (2)
6 ♣	Pass

1—The shaded suit Rebid is justified by the honor strength and distribution of the holding.

2—North can infer the strength and length of South's club suit because of the Opening club bid followed by two spade bids.

Directing a Child's Play

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A child's normal and perfectly natural desire to do things is like that "tide which taken at the flood"—only that a child's energy is so much more readily handled and controlled than tides of the sea.

A case came to my attention recently of a little girl who was fascinated by the tiny door in the bathroom which, when opened, let soiled linen fall into a basket in the basement. She was told to let it alone! Which, of course, she did NOT. Down the shute went her teddy bear, her doll, her dishes until mother found her and exclaimed in horror.

What is the solution, the mother begs to know. Not hard to find. A change from the use of energy for futile, and possibly destructive purposes, to constructive activity. I suggested that the child be given the responsibility for seeing that all soiled linen on the second floor was consigned to the little door and the basket downstairs via the shute route. Now, she proudly trots in with a soiled handkerchief, her own clothing which is ready for the laundry, and one piece at a time consigns them to the dark and intriguing little hole in the wall. She helps mother now, and mother now has a right to forbid throwing anything other than soiled linen down the hole.

Almost every activity that a child indulges in mistakenly, can be switched (by a thinking mother), to an act which is legitimate and enjoyable to the youngster.

'AS TO A FRIEND!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

A Word!
A Word!
I confess!
I confess -
Nell Brinkley

The Judge sits in his chamber, harkening with both ears, while "under the rose," as to a friend, damosels confess to romantic passages of the past. And he hears something, that one!

Only "a word—a word—;" but what unexpected trifles; tender, tinsel, childish, dead but undying, are brought to light in those words. At some ardent whispers the Judge's eyes pop, and his curls wave; at others a tiny tear glistens in the gold of his lashes; at still others he laughs aloud, "ho ho," but for every one he keeps his ears carefully bent that he may not miss the faintest, fartherest episode.

If you're one of the Fair (or even just so-so), can't you look back down the long-walk of your sentimental life, and find some odd and astonishing playmates there? Can you remember your very first love? A little boy in overalls with a brown lock over one eye, and a black cocker-spaniel named Sport, with whom you gathered the treasure, never to give out, of adventure, on the wide prairie. His name was John, wasn't it? Do you remember the handsome groceryman, 20 years older than you when you were still in pig-tails, who drove a black horse that strangely resembled the knight's horse in "Mort d'Arthur?" He never knew, of course, that a little girl saw a hero in him in disguise. Many they are, these grown-up men who are great and wonderful to little girls—and who never know. Perhaps there is one of the finest of romances for Love to put down in his little book of "words, words" from the lips of the confessing Fair.

The paper-boy; the mathematics teacher; the boy who showed you a way to memorize the Roman Emperors—snick—like that. He was homely—but he was beautiful. All along the way of romance Love closed the eyes and saw what he willed to see. Love dressed them one by one—those boys and men who were the objects of adoration—in the glitter of faery web.

And now you're telling Love, the Judge, under the rose, and he has forgotten, and laughs and weeps, and is aghast all in one breath.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Greeted by Display of Jealousy

Ronald started to his feet with a choking little cry as Mr. Merton summoned me to the telephone. I knew, of course, what was behind that terrified cry. I had said that I had left word with Noel where Mary and I were going, and he knew that Lillian would not disturb the only bit of outing—as she supposed it—that I had had, except for some grave emergency.

"My mother!" The words were a fear and an appeal. I answered both.

"Come with me, Ronald," I said. "We'll know in another minute."

We fairly ran down the twisting staircase, ignoring the frightened protests of Mrs. Merton, but when I took up the telephone it was no summons from the hotel that I heard.

"It isn't your mother," I told Ronald. "Go upstairs, please, and tell them so. I'll come up as soon as I get through this call."

I had covered the receiver with my hand as I spoke, but when I looked past Ronald I saw that no further precaution was needed. The Mertons had tactfully withdrawn themselves, not only from the kitchen, but from the house. I saw them through the window bending over the flowers that were patently the pride of the mistress of the tearoom.

"Who is this, anyway?" Dicky's voice fairly shouted into the telephone. I had recognized it in his first irritated "Hello!" and purposely had not answered. His intonation told me that I was in for a colloquy which might be anything but pleasant.

"It is I, Madge," I said, keeping my voice purposely dulcet. "Are you all right?"

PARRIES HUSBAND

"No. My back is broken, both legs crushed and my head bashed in. But there's enough left of me to want to know what in the devil you are doing up in that lonely place. Is Mary with you?"

"Yes. She obeyed your directions," I said, trying to keep the rancor at that direction out of my voice, but not succeeding.

"Oh, I knew you'd be sore," Dicky said, with no contrition in his tone, "but I'm not apologizing. And you haven't told me yet what you're doing there!"

"Have you telephoned the school?" I countered.

"Not yet. Look here! You can't stall that way. Why did you go to that tea room?"

His tone was so unreasoningly savage that I used my tried and true weapon against his ill-temper.

"Because I was hungry, for one reason," I told him lightly, laughing provokingly. "The other I'll tell you when you come over here."

"What d'ye mean, come over there? You and Mary get yourselves back here as quickly as the Lord will let you. I've something else to do besides ride herd on a couple of fool women. I've got to get in touch with Harry and—the great minds, immediately."

"If you mean father by 'great minds,'" I said, purposely twisting his words, for he always is most deferential to my father.

"You know I don't mean your father," he interrupted, his voice sounding suspiciously like a snarl.

"You'll find him over here with me," I went on smoothly, as if he had not spoken. "Harry and Ronald and Hugh are here also."

DICKY APOLOGIZES

"Especially Hugh." The snarl was distinct now. "You've answered my question at last. Too bad the rest had to butt in on the cosy little tea-fest."

"I shall expect you to apologize to me for that speech later," I told him icily. "In the meantime, if you'll telephone the school you'll find that there's an urgent summons for you to come over here as soon as you get in. We have important news, but nothing can be decided until you get here."

"I have important news, myself," Dicky said, and his tone was so like that of a sulky school boy that my amusement almost got the better of my resentment at his boorishness. And when, a few seconds later, he added, "Don't get snooty; I apologize," I surprised even myself by the warmth of my answer.

"I'm sorry, too. But hurry over. I've been terribly worried about you."

But as I turned from the telephone, the Puritan conscience which is my heritage made itself heard accusingly. I had been worried about him His danger had not often been absent from my mind. But I knew that for a brief time that afternoon I had lost sight of my absent husband's danger, in the present horror of Hugh Grantland's discouragement, that had seemed so much like despair.

Household Hints

Little chick gravel may be substituted for bird gravel for the canary.

Once a month put half a pound of saltpeter on the fire. The fumes will clear the chimney of soot.

Batter puddings can be made lighter by adding two teaspoons of ground rice to the flour before mixing.

Gift for Convalescent

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly let me know what would be appropriate for my husband and me to send to our doctor, who is ill in the hospital? We would like to send him a token of some sort. R.

Since the doctor will probably have a great many flowers sent to him, and since flowers aren't too easy to care for in a hospital, I suggest that you send him a perfectly-chosen book, for him to read during his convalescence. Or a group of the latest magazines, such as you are sure he would appreciate, is a good gift for the hospital, since it is easy to turn the pages and read rather casually.

Acknowledging Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am a daily reader of your column and wish you would inform me just the correct way to answer notes of sympathy one receives, after losing a dear member of the family.

2—Should one answer the notes of sympathy received from different societies to which they belong, and how should the notes be worded? I am in doubt about answering notes of sympathy received from missionary societies. F.

1—We should acknowledge every note of sympathy sent to us, every tribute of flowers, every kind of message of condolence, by writing a note, a short, sincere note, of appreciation of the thoughtfulness. Something like this:

Dear Mrs. Kindlee:

You were most kind, most friendy, to send us such a loving letter, and we thank you deeply. And the beautiful flowers, too, brought us your sympathy and your understanding. I wish that we could tell you how much we appreciated both your message and your flowers.

Sincerely yours.

2—The letters of appreciation to the societies would be worded about the same, and the letter would be addressed to the secretary, or to the person who sent the letter or the flowers for the society.

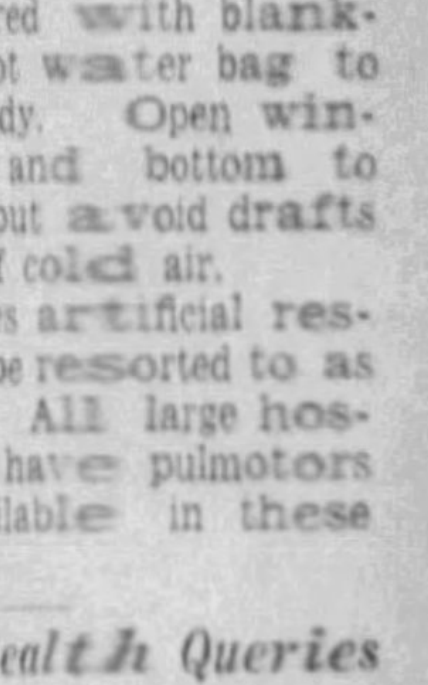
How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

The Danger of Carbon Monoxide Gas Poisoning



Dr. Copeland

Only recently I wrote on the subject of gas poisoning. I cannot refrain from saying something more about this serious and common accident. Too many persons suffer and die from gas poisoning only because they ignore the many warnings given them.

The greatest danger from gas poisoning is that produced by carbon monoxide gas which comes from the exhaust of automobiles and is found in city illuminating gas. If you are fortunate enough to own an automobile, you undoubtedly receive the warning issued by the commissioners of public vehicles. With each new license plate issued this year by many states, warning is made of the danger of running the motor of an automobile in a closed garage.

When carbon monoxide gas is inhaled it combines with the blood and produces serious and often fatal changes within the body. The poisonous gas is rapid in its deadly action. The victim is overcome before he has a chance to escape. Immediate and intelligent care is imperative and unless energetic measures are taken the victim never awakens.

Always open the garage doors and windows before starting the engine of your car. If you want to tinker with the motor do so outdoors. If this is not possible, attach a hose pipe tightly to the end of the exhaust pipe and run the hose outdoors. In this manner the poisonous gases will be released outdoors without danger to you.

Many cases of gas poisoning can be traced to leaks in gas pipes and tubing, to gas jets, imperfect flues and old stoves. Small leaks from gas pipes and tubing are dangerous. Even if you do not smell the leaking gas, the danger is present. Temporary patches on gas attachments are a menace that must not be tolerated.

Avoid burning gas during the night. A draft or wind may blow out the gas while you are asleep. The escaping gas may not be detected.

If you use many gas appliances be sure to keep them clean and free from soot. This prevents the escape of unnecessary carbon in your home.

The constant peril from carbon monoxide gas is now the subject of an investigation by New York State. This investigation and plans for the prevention of this danger will undoubtedly diminish the number of accidents that occur each year.

Bear in mind that carbon monoxide is one of the most deadly of all gases known to mankind. Avoid it and protect your health by following the precautions I have mentioned.

The first thing to do for a victim of gas poisoning is to call your doctor. While waiting for him to arrive, do not move the patient but make sure that he is well covered with blankets. Place a hot water bag to his feet and body. Open windows from top and bottom to refresh the air but avoid drafts and an excess of cold air.

In severe cases artificial respiration should be resorted to as soon as possible. All large hospitals and cities have pulmotors which are available in these emergencies.

Answers to Health Queries

T. A. Q.—I have had an enlarged joint on the great toe and recently struck it against a chair, causing swelling and pain. There seems to be a fluid underneath as the swelling is soft at the present time. What would you advise?

A—I would advise you to see your doctor for examination. It would be unwise to neglect a condition such as you describe.

R. E. W. Q.—Is stammering due to nervousness or a defect in the vocal organs?

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Black and white form a striking color combination for the woman who has silvery hair, no matter whether she once was blonde, brunette or betwixt-and-between. For evening frocks delicate shades are flattering, periwinkle blue, wild rose, faint green. Ofttimes a brilliant accent is effective, like royal blue or bright cardinal, used, of course, with discretion, and merely as a complemental hue. Pearls the correct gems for the white-topped sisters.

Hands rough? Try washing them with soap suds and cornmeal. Wonderful for digging black lines out of knuckles when the housekeeping job has been strenuous. Foam up the soap, pour a tablespoon of cornmeal into the palm of the hand, start scouring and grinding. Rinse, dry apply a hand lotion. An inexpensive one can be compounded by soaking thirty grains of gum tragacanth in seven ounces of rosewater for three days, adding one-half ounce of alcohol, one-half ounce of glycerine.

Brush the hair frequently, not only with the idea of removing surface dust but to pluck out dead hairs and are ready to quit. When the hair is falling badly, brushing is essential. It is like plucking off the dead leaves of a plant, giving strength to the new growth. part the hair in sections, hold away from the head, brush briskly.

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels and inactive liver. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

STOCK PRICES WILT UNDER SELLING

American Can, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, American Telephone, Coca Cola, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Louisville and Nashville yielded 2 points or more. United States Steel, Sears-Roebuck, Case, Public Service of New Jersey, New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio lost 1 or more. General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric and Montgomery Ward confined their losses to fractions. General Foods was up slightly.

Wall street was favorably impressed with the unqualified approval given to the National Transportation Committee report by the Association of Savings Banks. This was interpreted as an evidence that strong support would be mustered in back of the committee recommendations. It was considered unlikely, however, that any legislative action, based on the committee's findings, could be undertaken for several months.

Although January gross earnings of railroads fell considerably below their corresponding 1932 figures, the reports of individual companies, now reaching daylight, made a fairly favorable comparison in net operating income. Pennsylvania reported $2,700,616 last month against $2,725,430 a year ago; Erie, $550,876 against $366,958; New York, Ontario and Western, $151,912 against $82,056, and Illinois Central, $600,000, estimated, against $659,504. Texas and Pacific showed a net loss of $166,991, against a loss of $80,165 in January, 1932.

The dollar continued to make further headway at the opening of the foreign exchange market. British sterling cables were quoted at $3.40 11-16, off ¼ cent, and French francs at 3.94⅜, off 1-16 point.

TRUCK MERGER HELD UP

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The White Motor Company has withdrawn a plan of consolidation with the newly formed United Truck Corporation after a minority stockholder of White Motor had "threatened to tie up" the merger program by litigation.

In making the statement of withdrawal, A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation and chairman of the White board, pointed out that through United Truck Corporation Studebaker owned 95 per cent of the White stock and that the two interests were "now identical in a practical, if not a legal, sense with regard to all of the former White stockholders except a very small minority." Erskine added:

"The directors on advice of counsel decided to withdraw the plan to permit such modification or changes in it as might remove both legal hazards and minority objections."

MERGE FOR NEW KOPPERS CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A consolidation of the Koppers Company and Eastern Gas and Fuels Associates is being effected and will result in the formation of a new concern to be known as the Koppers Coal and Transportation Company, it was announced today.

The merger will involve all of the affiliated enterprises of the Koppers Company, including coal mines, selling agencies, steamship operations and docks. Subsidiary properties of the Eastern company will likewise be included.

Details of the capital structure of the new company and terms for the consolidation have not been disclosed.

CORN BREAKS TO YEAR'S LOW

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.— Downturns in grain values early today accompanied setbacks of securities. Corn fell to a new low price record for the season. Opening ¼ to ⅜ off, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started ⅛ to ½ down, and subsequently held near the initial range.

Mills Denies Offer From National City

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Reports circulated in New York that Secretary Mills has been offered an important executive position with the National City Bank, with a possibility of succeeding Charles E. Mitchell as chairman of the board, were termed "untrue" tonight by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Mills said he had not heard from anyone any offer of the kind.

SNIA VISCOSA PROFITS

Snia Viscosa (Milan, Italy) reports that net profits for 1932 amounted to 22,300,000 lire compared with 23,500,000 lire in 1931. Funds which the company has on deposit in the banks and invested in government securities amount to 255,900,000 lire compared with 244,900,000 at end of 1931.

GENERAL CIGAR

Sidney Weinberg has been elected a director of the General Cigar Company to succeed Arthur Sachu. Other directors were re-elected.

Bond Rally Attributed To Relaxation of Bank Selling

Appearance of firmer bids for government bonds, presumably due in part to reserve operations, and a subsidence of liquidation in high-grade corporate liens, paved the way for a turn for better in the investment market which had been falling almost steadily for nearly two weeks. There was much loose talk of the operations of the so-called "bond pool," but that corporation, it was maintained in good quarters, has not changed its stand, and while ready to take offerings at its own prices, has not raised its bids. The betterment in bonds was ascribed chiefly to the let-up in interior bank liquidation.

Taking its cue from the bond market, which turned to rally for the first time in 11 days, the share market showed a disposition to lift from the bottom as yesterday's session progressed. Selling pressure appeared momentarily to have run its course, but whether or not liquidation had been completed, the time element and technical conditions seemed to operate in a direction calling for at least something in the way of temporary correction. Trading, however, was still disposed to turn dull on the advance, a condition which naturally was interpreted as suggesting a lack of willingness in most quarters to attempt to catch a turn.

Thursday marked the ninth session of unbroken decline on the stock exchange and at the closing the market as measured by the standard statistics index of 90 active issues was ruling at levels representing a recession of about 22.7 per cent from the year's top level touched on January 10 last. Most of the so-called pivotal shares, however, taken at their 1933 lows made this week, still stand well above the 1932 panic lows.

January was the fifth consecutive month for Erie Railroad net operating income to show a gain over the corresponding month of the previous year. January net operating income was $550,876, against $366,958 in January, 1932. January gross totaled $5,331,052, compared to $6,037,651 a year ago.

Stockholders of Superior Oil Corporation have elected a new board of directors, including A. Perry Osborn, of New York; Harry H. Rogers, John Rogers, N. A. Gibson, J. R. Hayden, John L. Essley, all of Tulsa, Okla., and F. A. Mayer, vice president and treasurer of the Continental Supply Company, St. Louis. A readjustment plan for the company, covering settlement of indebtedness and authorization of certain claims, was approved, with the result that lifting of the receivership of the company is expected next week.

Increased confidence and slowly-broadening activity in trade last week continued to overshadow adverse conditions, the weekly mercantile reviews today reported. Bradstreet's pointed to the more favorable comparison of bank clearings with a year ago, the less than seasonal decline in business failures, apparent stability in the wholesale food price index, and industry's evident satisfaction over prohibition repeal action. Dun's said "persistent efforts to sell goods in a regular way are being rewarded" and that "reduced inventories, with further curtailment of production, have placed manufacturers in a more advantageous position."

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Larger bank clearings are again shown at a number of important cities. The total for this week at all leading centers in the United States, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co. was $3,984,837,000 or 0.8 per cent larger than the aggregate for the same week last year. At New York City, the amount was $2,859,992,000, an increase of 9.4 per cent, while the total for the cities outside of New York of $1,124,845,000 was 16.3 per cent lower.

Only five business days are included in this week's report, as well as for that of a year ago. This week's clearings are not only larger than those of last year, but exceed the clearings of last week by $456,421,000; in the corresponding week a year ago there was a decline in clearings of $739,201,000 from those of the preceding week, a decided improvement this year. New York City again leads in the larger amount shown, but there were gains also at Philadelphia, Kansas City and Cleveland, the latter probably because of the closing down at Detroit. Losses at other centers are much below those heretofore recorded.

Clearings at all leading points, showing increases and decreases as compared with same period a year ago follow (totals in thousands):

Further Decrease In U. S. Gold Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—A net decline of $17,111,103 in the nation's monetary gold stocks was reported yesterday in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's daily gold statement.

There was a net loss caused by a gain in gold held under earmark for foreign account of $15,695,300. Exports were reported of $2,936,803 to Holland and $157,000 to England. Imports were reported of $188,200 from Holland, $995,800 from Canada and $494,000, received at San Francisco, from China.

Westinghouse Electric Loss Increased During Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC and Manufacturing Company lost more money in 1932 than in 1931. This reflected the lack of expansion work by public utility companies, the interruption of modernization programs by industrial organizations and reduction in the demand for small electric appliances.

Unfilled orders touched a new low mark for the depression, indicating that no immediate recovery in volume is to be expected. The loss for the final three months of 1932 was the greatest of any three month period of the present business slump.

According to the preliminary report for the year, the net loss was $8,903,540. This compared with a loss of $3,655,659 in 1931 and with a net profit of $11,881,706 or $4.46 a share on the combined preferred and common stocks in 1930.

* * *

Unfilled Orders Drop to New Low

UNFILLED ORDERS at the end of the year amounted to $26,836,494. This compared with $40,024,390 a year ago.

The increased loss is readily explained by the drop in the volume of sales billed. These totaled $77,073,586 for 1932, as compared with $115,393,082 for 1931 and with $180,283,580 for 1930.

Orders received showed an even more pronounced decline during the year. They amounted to $69,082,468 for 1932, as compared with $128,014,820 in 1931.

Drastic economies have been placed into effect during the past three years, but the decline in business volume has been too rapid for these steps to be readily apparent in the income accounts. Any recovery in business, however, should demonstrate the company's ability to show a profit on a smaller volume of business than ever before.

Current Position Remains Strong

THE COMPANY'S strong current financial position makes it possible for the organization to weather periods of depression with little difficulty. The entire funded debt was paid off in 1928. In recent years cash has been substantially in excess of all current liabilities.

A complete balance sheet as of the end of 1932 has not yet been made public. It was declared yesterday, however, that the organization closed the year with a slightly better cash position than at the end of the previous year. Cash and marketable securities amounted to $32,851,763 on December 31, 1932, as compared with $32,148,727 on December 31, 1931.

LOCAL MARKET SLIGHTLY LOWER

Prices dipped slightly on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in today's short session but there was no heavy liquidation and a fair demand for leading stocks was in evidence. Lone Star Gas took the brunt of the mild selling that made its appearance as the result of the bank holiday in Maryland, but the big fuel leader withstood the offerings well.

It reacted fractionally and at no time was the market without bids very close to the previous quotation. Several hundred shares of Lone Star were taken on the movement. A new low for the current reaction was established, but it was only a fraction under the bottom recorded earlier in the week.

In other directions the market's fluctuations were confined to the smaller fractions as a rule. Brewings held fairly steady. Heavy industrials were quiet. The market's action brought further comment to the effect that the local list is very well stabilized.

ECONOMIST HITS INFLATION

Inflation does not offer a practical means for recovery, Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, chairman of President Hoover's research committee on social trends, declared last night at a dinner given to more than 125 industrialists, financiers and professional men at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association by the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation. Dr. Mitchell declared:

"Placing more money in circulation is a remedy already discountenanced by existing facts. At the present time there is an abundance of money in banks throughout the country. It is lying there unused, while interest rates stand at the lowest level in recent economic history. What is needed is not more money, but a general spirit of confidence and courage that will lead the country to make use of the money it already has."

BANK REFORM NEED SHOWN BY QUIZ

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Recent unsavory disclosures before the Senate Finance Committee point unmistakably to the need of banking reform.

Writing new legislation, such as the Glass bill, is necessary and desirable, but is not enough. We should seek also to develop a new public opinion regarding banking in the United States.

Mr. Rukeyser

Banking ought to come to be regarded as an honorable profession, with a high code of ethics. There ought to be emphatic public disapproval of attempts of bank officers to use their high positions improperly to feather their own nests.

Just as it is illegal for a bank to make a loan secured by its own capital stock, bank officers should be denied the right to make loans to themselves. The ability to continue to do so places bankers in a dual role, making them both the judge and the judged when their credit standing is examined. If bank officers have a legitimate need for credit, they should be compelled to go to outside, neutral banking institutions.

URGES LICENSE RULE

When these hidden emoluments are taken away from banking, and bankers are paid openly for services rendered, perhaps there will be a rise in the standard of character of men attracted to banking. As in the law and medicine, there should be educational prerequisites. Officers of banks should be licensed.

As appraisers of community credit problems, bankers ought not themselves to become involved in promotions, pool operations and other self-seeking pursuits, which limit their independence of vision.

The objective is not merely to prevent bank officers being overpaid, for in the large the excess remuneration in flush times is offset by losses in depression periods. The real goal should be to remove the danger of economic dislocations resulting from putting the delicate controls in the hands of men without the independence of mind and disinterestedness needed.

It is futile to lynch the reputations of individuals. The general mental attitude of the financial district before the panic was too much focussed on private gain, rather than on community service. Though it is not accurate to indicate that all were in the same boat, it is perhaps true that there was too little science in banking management.

REFORM SEEN

Referring to the indecencies of banking, Senator-elect McAdoo, who after March 4 seems likely to become a powerful national figure again, urges a constitutional amendment designed to take the power of creating and controlling banks from the states. This is in line with the recommendation by Owen D. Young that a single jurisdiction in connection with American banking would be helpful.

WORKER TELLS OF NEEDY AID

By ROSELYN MILLER
Father Cox Relief Headquarters

When times were prosperous we used to say "one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives." Time have changed—there are now 10 unemployed and destitute to five who are fortunate enough to be on a payroll or have an income from other sources. And in nearly all of these cases the incomes have been reduced. I have an idea that there are still many who do not stop to think how this mighty multitude of destitute exists.

You don't really come face to face with these facts until you see conditions as they really are and as I see them seven days a week. All day long, from early morning until late at night, there is a steady stream of unemployed and needy at the door of Father Cox.

He gives each and every one a hearing, wholesome counsel and material aid, if it is in his power. It really hurts him more to turn an applicant away without the special aid they implore than it does the applicant. To be sure some of the requests are unreasonable, but the great majority is for assistance that is urgently needed.

The public is good, considering all conditions, in its response to the appeals of Father Cox. But the public would, I think, be more liberal if it could see the day in and day out distress that we see at Old St. Patrick's. The Sun-Telegraph subscription drive is helping materially in relieving this distress.

This compares with net of $914,683 in 1931, or $4.57 a share.

National Leather Company report for 1932 shows net loss of $1,653,583 after inventory, writ down, depreciation, interest and other charg , compared with net loss of $1,419,568 in 1931.

BANK TROUBLES HAMPERING STEEL

By B. E. V. LUTY

Production of steel ingots this week was at about 18 per cent of capacity, representing a decrease of a point from the approximately uniform rate of 19 per cent in the three weeks preceding. The rate is slightly above the January average and one-fifth above the December average.

While the decrease is small, it is important, because ordinarily there is seasonal increase at this time. Thus there is something to be explained.

The trade explanation is that the banking trouble in Michigan caused apprehension as to difficulties developing elsewhere, and that some buyers, now having little time to wait, were disposed to postpone action until after the inauguration. Bank regulation in Michigan has not affected the movement of steel into the state as credit of buyers was not disturbed, and methods of payment have been arranged.

The automobile industry has absorbed about 20 per cent of all the steel made since the first of the year, somewhat more than its usual proportion. Ford operations are still far below the program when the Briggs strike began. The industry is now between the period of stocking dealers with samples and the period of active buying by the public, and is proceeding conservatively as to production.

RAIL ORDERS LOOM

Several roads are expected to place rail orders within the next two to four weeks. Earlier in the year there was production against some old orders while now there is virtually no production. There is no indication as to when car and locomotive repairs will be undertaken, but freight car loadings had a favorable turn in the fortnight ended a week ago.

Fabricated structural steel lettings reported in the last two weeks have been light and not much new work is coming up.

As for many months past, demand from miscellaneous small consumers is better than demand from the large classes, with the single exception of the automobile industry.

Tin plate mills have been averaging an operation above 45 per cent and production since the middle of January has been about one-fifth above that in the same period last year.

The steel trade expects some further increase in tonnage in the next three or four months, but not a great deal, having larger hopes for the second half of the year. Producers would probably be willing to compromise on an average operation of 25 per cent in the next four month , while the notion seems to be that a rate between 30 and 40 per cent may be struck later in the year.

PRICE STRUCTURE FIRM

The general steel price structure presents a better appearance through the spread of a co-operative spirit, which it is hoped will be made universal, as large producers are thoroughly indisposed to hold the umbrella.

Bars, shapes and plates, on which the openly quoted market price has been 1.60 cents, Pittsburgh, for nearly a year, are much steadier. Sheets have been showing a stiffening tendency, with more in prospect. Nails, staples and barb wire are holding at the advance of a dollar a ton announced a fortnight ago, but regular buyers are covered by contracts. Pipe prices are fairly well maintained, and the tin plate price is reported to be holding rigidly.

The scrap market shows a firmer tone, light consumer demand being fully matched by offerings being very limited. Hydraulic compressed is stronger, and the low phosphorus specialties are quoted up 50 cents a ton.

'ECONOMISTS' DEFINED BY INSTRUCTOR

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The other day I was asked why the economists have done practically nothing to solve the problems of the depression. My answer was:

"Who are the economists?"

That is our great difficulty. Anyone can set up as an "economist." From the man in the street who reads about economic conditions, to the physician or lawyer who happens to be running a bank, everyone is apt to think he knows economics.

One of the worst cases in point is that furnished by members of such allied groups as accountants, statisticians and engineers. These "professional men" may have had little or no training in economic science. Their work, however, brings them into touch with certain economic problems, so they pose as "economists."

USES BUSINESS TERMS

You see, anyone can talk the language of economics, for unfortunately economics uses the common terms of business. It has few peculiar technical terms. In this, it differs from such sciences as chemistry and astronomy. Even such arts as medicine and law are sealed books to most men, partly because of the words they use. But anyone can talk like an economist.

Again, economic problems are so mixed up with private business problems that many confuse economics with business. Thus we are prone to threat men who have knowledge of business as though they knew economics.

The science of economics takes a public or social point of view. It is concerned with the general welfare insofar as economic values are concerned. In dealing with the tariff question, for example, the true economist considers the interests of the nation as a whole, while naturally each business man thinks first of his own business.

TRAINING ESSENTIAL

To be worthy of the name of economist, a man should have years of training in economic science and the history of economic developments. Probably he should have been tested by experience. He should be free from special interests which conflict with the public interest. He should have a record which will stand careful checking.

It would be well if a record were made of the judgments expressed by all who pose as economists. Then this might be checked against results. Then maybe the "unfit" could be weeded out. Maybe!

But you cannot expect "economists" to have much influence unless economics be recognized as a science and economists as a well-trained body of scientists who survive by test.

U. S. Steel Moves Southern Plant

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The United States Steel Corporation today announced that the wire plant of the American Steel and Wire Co., at Fairfield, Ala., will be transferred to the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co.

The American Steel and Wire Co., is was announced, "in the future will operate this plant and look after the sale of its products."

Both companies are subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation.

Delaware & Hudson Net Recapturable

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued a tentative recapture report holding that Delaware and Hudson Railroad System had net railway operating income in 1921, 1924 and 1926 aggregating $4,325,462, of which one-half is payable to the government.

EATING HOUSES FACING RENT PROBLEMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Adjustment of rent on a percentage basis has become a major goal of the nation's restaurant industry in its attempt to keep the red ink off its ledgers.

Throughout the country, the National Restaurant Association finds, restaurateurs in many cases have won contracts whereby they pay rent in direct proportion to gross income.

The trend in this direction, leaders of the industry say, has become general, with a rental approximating seven per cent of gross receipts as the arrangement usually sought.

VOLUME OF 45 PER CENT

Such a move has become necessary, restaurateurs explain, because the industry's volume has dropped about 45 per cent since 1929—including a 30 per cent decline in volume plus a drop of 15 per cent in the average customer check.

If other items on a restaurant's budget are reduced to proper percentages, the association has found, the average establishment still can make a "fair" profit if rent is held to something approaching seven per cent of gross receipts.

OPERATING COSTS CUT

Most well-managed restaurants, association reports show, have been able to trim other budgetary items, such as food costs and labor, in keeping with present business conditions.

Over the nation generally, the National Association has found, about 50 per cent of all restaurants have changed hands or gone out of business annually since 1928.

In attempts to halt establishment of restaurants under shaky management, the association has sought to have equipment dealers tighten their credit with prospective new restaurant owners.

CAR LOADINGS UP 13,070

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Loading of revenue freight during the week ended February 18 totaled 514,390 cars. This is an increase of 13,070 cars over the previous week, but 57,875 cars under the like 1932 week, according to the American Railway Association.

Zinc Production Gains in January

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—World zinc production in January totaled 78,753 short tons, compared with 73,803 tons in December and 80,564 in January, 1932, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

Production in the United States in January was 19,859 tons, against 18,489 tons in December.

Stocks of zinc at the end of January in the United States came to 29,524 tons, compared with 124,705 tons at the close of December.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

To Phyllis, on Rates of Exchange

I have no heart since you have gone away,
For this anomaly you share the blame!
Think of the debt of loneliness I pay.
Such usury I knew not when you came.
But knowing, you shall have the interest,
So keep the heart; without it, I shall live
Happy as when I had it. I am blessed
In that I have no other heart to give;

And while you keep it by you it will sing
A warming monody of sweet unrest,
Until you find yourself a-wondering
Why your own heart complains within your breast

And thus, with love's confusion all beset,
Lend it me back to satisfy the debt!
—Paul Lee Carr.

Me, Too

The following is the dedication prefixed to Dr. Henry Van Dyke's work: "The Ruling Passion." It is called: "A Writer's Request to His Master," to wit:

"Lord, let me never tag a moral to a story, nor tell a story without a meaning. Make me respect my material so much that I dare not slight my work. Help me to deal very honestly with words and with people because they are both alive.

"Steady me to do my full stint of work as well as I can; and when that is done, stop me, pay what wages Thou wilt, and help me to say, for a quiet heart, a grateful Amen."

Merciless Truth

Lines I Wish I Had Written: Jimmy Walker's—"It is too bad that the cheers of yesterday have such a short echo."

As If We Didn't Know

The Retort Candid

It is difficult to top the little ladies who peddle ciggies in cafes. One wiseguy who paid one gal 45 cents for a two-for-a-quarter cigar and 30 cents for 15c cigarets said:

"I'm not tipping you, because I know you can't keep the tips but have to turn them all over to your boss."

Newspaperman Stuff

As Benjamin Franklin once remarked:

"To write clearly, not only the most expressive but the plainest words should be chosen. The fondness of some writers for words that carry with them an air of learning, prevents them from being understood by more than half the people.

"If a man wishes his messages to have an effect on all readers, he had better be guided by the writer who would use only words that could be understood by his cook."

Izzy Elinsonisms

I've just learned why conferences of the world's greatest minds have failed to end the depression. Every time they put their heads together they find themselves in the dark—because of Einstein's hair . . . Congress is trying to cut down our Navy—as if we didn't have a great enough surplus of beans already . . . And that slogan seems to have been changed to "Join the Navy—with the Army" . . . I've discovered the cutest little speakeasy. They have the decorations under the tables—where the customers can see them . . . The Metropolitan is trying to raise $300,000 to continue Grand Opera in New York. That would be 300 grand opera, no? . . . Is he superstitious? Say, that guy knocks on wood more often than an xylophone player!

Form of Criticism

J. M. Josefsberg disagrees with Len Golos who says that columnists are like last moment news flashes . . . After all, last moment news flashes are readable.

All's Fair in Love, Etc.

Guiseppe Zanagar (who is almost as clever as Izzy Elinson) argues that the local space-wasters' names should be spelled in this manner: Walter Winchellousy . . . Mark Hellingerotten . . . Louis Drunk or Sobol—I don't like hin . . . O. O. McInflatire . . . Eddie [illegible]llivanity . . . Paul Yaw[illegible]awful! . . . John Chapmaniac and Sidney Numbskullsky!

Thrill Film In Davis

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

"Nagana," a story of a scientist's battle against the dread sleeping sickness in the heart of the African jungle, brings the punch of a real thriller to the Davis this week. The show rises to a climax equalling that of Trader Horn as witch doctors dance about a dying chief with whose fate is linked the destiny of a beautiful woman, and the solution to the jungle disease almost achieved after months of sacrifice and danger.

Tala Birell, heroine of the "Doomed Battalion," heads the cast as a meddling woman in love, but a swift succession of excitements and dangers overshadows her. Three names stand out for their workmanlike, clear-cut performance—Melvyn Douglas, the hard-driving scientist; M. Morita, his Japanese assistant, who sacrifices himself for humanity, and Everett Brown, who makes a powerful and awesome figure of the native chief's son.

Although bringing in many elaborate and thrilling animal and native scenes, and a satisfactory love episode, "Nagana" succeeds where most pictures of its type do not—by holding a tense interest in its main theme of conquering disease.

Another feature, "He Learned About Women," is a fast and amusing comedy drama, with Stuart Erwin, Alison Skipworth and Susan Fleming. It concerns a studious young man, Stuart Erwin, who having inherited a colossal fortune, sets out to find out about life. It is amusing and well handled.

'Diamond Lil' Redeemed In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Who says that Hollywood is not a power for good? Even Mae West has been redeemed and will be led to the altar in the new picture, "She Done Him Wrong," visible at the Penn. Lil, who has changed her name to Lou, still is queen of a Bowery joint in this picture as in the drammer. She still is a collector of "rocks" and a reader of the Police Gazette. She still falls in love with the handsome mission worker next door, and gives some of her "rocks," worth 12,000 bucks, to a Mosaic gentleman to buy the building so the mission won't be put out.

Mr. Seibel

That word "bucks" is an anachronism, because 40 years ago on the Bowery a "buck" was not a numismatic specimen. But then Mae says, "Oh, yeah" in the drammar, so what does a date matter? The life of the Bowery when there were plenty of "moiders" is pictured with something doing every minute. It's a glorious slumming expedition, with Mae or Lil or Lou wearing chandeliers all over her abundant anatomy and "Silver Threads Among the Gold" causing tears to fall into beers.

The picture is more entertaining than the play was, because it has a longer vista and more local color—also because some of the odors are diluted. Still the old-fashioned suds are on tap, and the vampish eyes of Lil-Mae-Lou seek whom they may devour. She scatters epigrams all the way from Sing Sing to Hester street, combs a murdered woman's hair to foil the police, sings "Frankie and Johnnie," but despite all she has a heart of gold and was last seen in a buggy headed for a parsonage with Cary Grant. While the Kleigs hold out to burn, the vilest sinner may return. Hail to the power of Hollywood—Diamond Lil has hit the sawdust trail.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 25.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

A lot of you are asking today, Douglas, Douglas, who in the world is this Douglas, that they have appointed night watchman of the budget. Well, there is one guy I can tell you about. I know him, he is the only Congressman from Arizona, incidentally every state ought to only have one. Arizona does better with one than New York does with 45. Douglas is a might able young man, a great-grandson of Stephen A. Douglas—Douglas, Ariz., was named for him. The budget is a mythical beanbag. Congress votes mythical beans into it, and then tries to reach in and pull real beans out. Yours, WILL.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Intimate views of Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, named to be Secretary of State by President-elect Roosevelt, and of William H. Woodin, of Philadelphia and New York, chosen to be Secretary of the Treasury, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Mr. Woodin gives a brief talk.

Sir Malcolm Campbell is shown at Daytona Beach, Fla., where he broke his own auto record with the amazing speed of 272 miles an hour. The Globe-Trotter gives a graphic description.

Impressive pictures come from the Lourdes, where thousands of pilgrims journey to the famous grotto in observance of its seventy-fifth anniversary. The lame, the halt and the blind gather around Cardinal Binet, who leads the services.

4 ALPHABETS IN THIS CIPHER

By KENNETH A. NAGEL

How are you coming along on Cipher No. 63? It is hard, isn't it? Don't give up. See if you can have the answer before you buy Monday's Sun-Telegraph.

Here's a tip that may help. Make a table with four alphabets. That should simplify the problem.

Moving Day Near As Republican Lease Expires

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The country changes hands next week like an Indian club in a juggling troupe.

The Democrats allow the Republicans 24 hours to remove the women and children. Then Jim Farley starts shelling the postoffices.

Even the Smithsonian Institution goes Democratic. Fortunately, all the buildings are steel and marble. The evacuating forces can't fire 'em to prevent them from falling into the possession of the enemy.

Do you realize that it is only a week from today? Or, are you like the other Democrats who have lost track of time, tide and government payrolls?

We expect to be there cheering the boys on to political paradise. From the Capitol to the White House is the last, long mile. Then the boys can break the speedometer.

Star to Sell House, Return to England

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Announcing plans to return to England, Esther Ralston, film actress, said today her Hollywood home will be sold at auction Monday. She estimated the value of the house at $200,000 and the furnishings at $100,000.

She will be accompanied to England by her husband, George Webb, and their child. She said she planned to make pictures abroad.

Flagg, Quirt In Warner

By MARY SHINE

"Hot Pepper," which opened in the Warner yesterday, seems to have no better excuse for existing than to present the Mexican personification of hot-cha, Lupe Velez, in a series of childish tantrums. It also revives the characters of Quirt and Flagg, the tough Marines, familiar to fiction and screen.

Edmund Lowe, as Quirt, and Victor McLaglen, as Flagg, upon retiring from the Marines turn their talents to chiseling and bootlegging, respectively.

After several years of rivalry over various not-so-fair ladies, both finally settle their affections on Hot Pepper, Lupe Velez. After a grand free-for-all battle in a night club, Quirt and Flagg transfer their affections back to the Marines and that's that.

Food 'Tickets' For Show

The demand for canned goods and standard package groceries should be unusually big today because these—not cash—will be the only requirements for admission to the Sunday benefit movie show to be given tomorrow at the Sheridan Square Theater, East Liberty, for the poor of Sacred Heart parish.

The big show, as usual, will begin at 2 o'clock and run continuously until 11 o'clock, presenting an outstanding success among feature pictures with newsreels, comedies and short subjects.

'State Fair' Grand In Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Of course, you may not find it of paramount interest, but you will get something of a thrill out of the winning of a hog championship prize by Blue Boy, the pride of Will Rogers in "State Fair," swell picture in the Stanley. Really Blue Boy ought to get a lot of praise for something besides his blue blood. Because Will thinks he is the best boar in the state, he shows him in the state fair. Ma goes along to exhibit pickles and mince meat. Daughter and son, otherwise Janet Gaynor and Norman Foster, go along for a good time, and they have it. And Blue Boy is the cause of it all, including the good time spectators have watching the picture.

It is mostly comedy, with some romance, held together by grand characterization on the part of those mentioned, as well as by Louise Dresser, as Ma Frake; Lewis Ayres and Sally Eilers, whom the younger Frakes meet without the knowledge of their parents at the fair, and Frank Craven, a local merchant who quotes Emerson.

Mr. Will Rogers Frake and Mrs. Louise Dresser Frake and Janet Gaynor Frake are all winners at the fair—Janet's trophy being a romantic one, but there is much between the time they drive carefully on a truck with Blue Boy, to attend the exposition, and their rapid drive home, regardless of road conditions, because, as Will remarks, Blue Boy, having won the prize, need no longer be treated like a prima donna.

It is just such things that make "State Fair" what it is—the joy and excitement of such an institution. The olders may find themselves in it as Pa and Ma Frake, intent on getting blue ribbons, and perhaps living again the days when they, as youngsters, found adventure, romance and satisfaction amidst exhibits and amusements and horse-racing.

MERIT IN SUGGESTED RULE CHANGES

THOUGH FOOTBALL FOLLOWERS in general were relieved and gratified when the rules committee decided to do much less tinkering than usual with the code for next season as affecting the college division, it must be admitted that there is merit in some of the changes to be considered by the National Professional League at its special meeting here today and tomorrow with President Joseph F. Carr in the chair. This applies particularly to the abolition of the huddle, prevention of tie games by the playing of overtime periods, and the restoration of the goal posts to the goal line.

Pop Warner

The huddle is a tiresome time waster, with the watch ticking all the while, and takes out of the game much of the zest it had with a peppery quarterback barking the signals. Tie games are unsatisfactory, and any step to prevent them would be welcome. While it was a move for safety, putting the goal posts 10 yards behind the goal line robbed the sport of one of its most popular features by making the kicking of goals from field almost a lost art.

ONE PROMINENT COLLEGE figure strong for the return of the posts to the goal line is Pop Warner. Pop always has argued that when kicking is taken out the game isn't being kept true to its name of football. For that reason he used to favor the onside kick over the forward pass. The two came in together in 1906, but the onside kick was legislated out in 1923. It put every offensive player except the kicker onside as soon as a punt touched the ground.

Ever since the goal posts were put back 10 yards behind the goal line in 1927, Warner has deplored the move. "I regret the decrease in field goal attempts that resulted," he said only recently. "I think the dropkick or placement kick goal is not only a spectacular, but frequently a winning maneuver. With the goal posts back 10 yards, field goal kicking is almost extinct."

THE FADEAWAY, OR the screw ball as they call it now, is supposed to have been invented and introduced into baseball by Christy Mathewson, but if you'll take the word of Smiling Mickey Welch for it, the pitch is more than 50 years old.

Mickey was one of the original Giants, and he told Frank Graham that in his pitching days around 1880 he and several others were throwing the fadeaway.

"I HAD A pretty good fast ball, but I depended chiefly on a change of pace and an assortment of curves," says Mickey. "And I had a fadeaway, though I didn't call it that. It was just a slow curve ball that broke down and in on a right-hand batter, and I got a lot of good results with it in the 10 years I pitched for the Giants. Not until Matty came along and they began to write about his fadeaway did I realize that I had pitched it for years. Why, I learned it within a couple of years after I started to play ball in 1877, and I had no copyright on it. There were several other pitchers who used it."

Freddie Heimach

DO YOU KNOW that there's a player in the major leagues who has not made a fielding error in the last five years? The distinction belongs to Freddie Heimach, a veteran left-hand pitcher of the Dodgers. He has not committed a foozle since 1927.

Heimach started the 1928 season with St. Paul, then went to the Yankees, next to Toledo and finally to Brooklyn. In five straight years of slab service for four different leagues he has worked in 180 games and has handled a total of 269 fielding chances—33 putouts and 236 assists—without a slip.

FOLLOWERS OF THE University of Chicago are expecting that Clark Shaughnessy, replacing Alonzo Stagg as football coach, will put the Maroon over in a big way next fall, but if he does so he will be an exception in the Western Conference.

Conditions in the Big Ten are against a new coach's going very far until he has had two or three seasons to get accustomed to the intense scouting. Bernie Bierman, with the reputation of having led Tulane to the Rose Bowl the year before, had a fine squad at Minnesota last season, and yet he won only two Conference games.

OBSERVERS IN THE Middle West say that teams playing outside a close circle like the Big Ten cannot have the complete and precise scouting that makes going through the list in the Conference so tough a contract. The usual course is that a new coach starts off nicely for a few games. Then the scouts get him tabbed, and opponents begin to turn up with defensive systems that stop his attack. About that time he is inclined to start doubting his own stuff and is likely to begin trying for a different style of offense, with new plays to meet the situation, which often is the worst mistake he could make.

THE SUCCESS OF the Duquesne University basketball team in winning 11 straight games is due largely to the fact that the Bluffites have a strong defensive system in addition to a fine offense. It bears out the argument of the pros that, to get anywhere, a quintet must have a good defense as well as an attack.

Speaking of defensive basketball, an individual record on that side of the game that is a standout in the college division is that of Johnny Walsh, of Colgate. In three seasons he has held the players opposing him to an average of one and one-half baskets per game.

WAS HELENE MADISON'S domination of the feminine swimming world due to actual superiority, or partly to a psychological handicap under which opposing swimmers may have placed themselves in harboring the belief that an existing champion cannot be beaten?

The fact that Helene set 16 out of 17 world records in addition to winning races, leaves no doubt that she was traveling. But some of the experts insist that she stayed in front largely because rivals felt they had no chance against her.

Lenore Kight

OUT IN THE Olympics there were two who refused to be buffaloed. Lenore Kight, of Homestead, was so close in the 400 meters that a lot of folks aren't sure even now that Helene wasn't beaten, and in the 100 meters Willy Van Ouden, of Holland, was close enough to make the champion uncomfortable. These performances convince some of the experts that there are faster girl swimmers than Miss Madison if they could only get rid of the idea that a champion is invincible. It was the same when Claire Galligan held the title in five events for three straight years; when Ethelda Bleibtrey was champion in six events for five years in succession and when Ethel Lackie won the 100-yard title for five successive years. Always there is one girl who spreadeagles the field largely, it is claimed, because the others think she is invincible. The subject comes up again at this time because Miss Madison has announced her retirement. It is predicted by some authorities that now that the champion has quit, other girl swimmers following the example of Miss Kight, will throw off their inferiority complex and break half of Helene's records during the next year.

GIBSON ORDERS HURLERS TO BE CAREFUL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 25.—As his Pirate pitchers and catchers dressed for another drill this morning, Manager George Gibson realized he had four or five sharpshooters in his recruit division who were "rarin' to go." Ralph Birkofer, Charley Wood, Leon Chagnon and Hal Smith have reached such a state of condition that any of the four can cut loose, but Gibby has warned them to hold their speed in check.

Gibson is a hard task master, but he does not wish to take any chances. A few of the veterans may grumble about Gibby's driving tactics, but they admit that he does not ask anybody to exert his arm. The big Canuck insists on two workouts a day for the pitchers and catchers and he makes his athletes run around the park when they were not otherwise engaged.

PLAYS NO FAVORITES

The fact that some pilots work their batterymen only once per day until the second squad arrives is known to the Buccos, but Gibby has his own system and it is built upon hard work. And there are no favorites.

Larry French was the chief popper-off of the Pirate squad today as a result of batting feat of yesterday. The peppery southpaw pumped two balls over the distant right field fence. French had the wind in his favor, but he actually got hold of the drives as he batted lefthanded.

French put on quite a scene when he cleared the fence with his first smack, but when he duplicated the feat he could not be held. Walking up to Boss Gibson, Larry asked permission to hit in the regular batting sessions after the season starts. Gibson chased him but Larry shouted he would take Erv Brame's place as a pinch hitter.

CASUALTIES ABSENT

There is not a real casualty in the camp. A brisk wind has hampered the workouts somewhat, but there has been plenty of sun, too.

Honus Wagner's birthday party was a success. The popular veteran was swept off his feet as he stepped into the dining room last night. When he reached his table it held a suspicious cover. At a given signal more than 20 Buccos jumped around Honus' table.

As the players crowded about Honus he gasped. Then he pulled back the covering and beheld a beautfiul birthday cake.

Among the birthday messages received by Wagner was one from George L. Moreland, who gave Wagner his first job in Steubenville in 1895. The salary was $35 per month. After reading the message Wagner said:

"I held out for $40, but he would not boost the figure so I reported on a freight train."

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN—The bark "Columbine," trading regularly among the scattered group of the Shetland Islands, was precipitately deserted by her crew on November 3, 1886, upon landing at Larwick. In their frantic haste, an elderly female passenger, Mrs. Inge Bjorn, was forgotten aboard when the bark suddenly floated off the bank. The old lady found herself completely alone on an abandoned ship with every prospect of a watery grave. An easterly gale drove the vessel until Iceland was in sight. Then the wind suddenly shifted to westward and the "Columbine" began to drift towards Norway. She cleared the dangerous reefs of Vigero Fjord in a miraculous manner, threading channels which tax the skill of the most experienced pilot. At the mercy of wind and wave, the bark drifted between Iceland and Norway for 108 days, until some fisherfolk sighted the stranded vessel and at great risk got the famished, half-frozen "forgotten woman" safely ashore.

E. PITTSBURGH FIVE DEFEATS KEN HIGH

By JULIUS LEVIN

The first round of the annual W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series will be concluded tonight when Robinson Township, champion of Section XII, clashes with Canonsburg High School, champion of Section XV, on the Mt. Lebanon High School floor.

The Robinson Township quintet is one of the surprise teams in the W. P. I. A. L. as a result of a brilliant showing compiled in the Section XII race. Robinson Township led the field in this division from the outset and won the right to enter the tournament without trouble. South Fayette was the only team to defeat Robinson Township, turning the trick by a 23-22 score.

CANONSBURG STRONG

Canonsburg is no stranger in W. P. I. A. L. eliminations. This town along the Panhandle division has for years been represented by a powerful high school basketball team and this season's tournament entry is no exception. Coach C. M. Musser had to wade through a strong field to win the Section XV title. Last year the Gunners drew a bye in the first round, but were eliminated in the second round by East Pike Run, 28-16. They are hoping for better luck tonight.

A courageous East Pittsburgh High School basketball team, champion of Section XVII, came to life in the second quarter, after a lethargic start, in the Pitt Stadium pavilion last night, to defeat New Kensington High, champion of Section I, in the opening battle of the tournament. The score was 37 to 26.

Playing to a 4-4 draw in the first quarter, New Kensington opened a drive in the second stanza that had the Shamrocks, of East Pittsburgh, bewildered. The Allegheny Valley representatives started to go places shortly after the first intermission, and before East Pittsburgh could get its bearings the Glockmen were leading by a score of 12-4. A field goal by Kweller and a foul by Narey for East Pittsburgh and a foul by Shukis for New Kensington brought the score to 13-7 with the Glockmen in the lead.

SHAMROCKS TAKE LEAD

Here East Pittsburgh, thanks to the accuracy of Kweller, who counted from the floor twice, Paliscak, who chalked up a doubledecker, and Clougherty, who made good on three attempts from the foul line, the Shamrocks pulled ahead at 16-13.

Walatis tied the score at 16-all with a field goal and a foul shortly after the start of the third quarter. Shukis added a field goal, and New Kensington was ahead for what proved to be the last time.

Beginning a drive that swept the valley passers off their feet, East Pittsburgh, with Clougherty, Narey, Zakravsky, who had replaced Kweller at center, and Fabel leading the way, got the range of the basket and opened a barrage that netted 10 field goals. The best New Kensington could do during the same period was four baskets.

VICTORS SHINE

Picking an individual star for the winners would prove a difficult task as the Shamrocks, once they got their bearings, worked together in a machine-like manner. They could not be stopped. Kweller's height at center and at the foul line aided East Pittsburgh considerably in piling up the winning margin. The floor work of Fabel, Clougherty and Narey likewise stood out for the visitors. The Ross boys and Shukis starred for the losers. Fabel led the winners in scoring with eight points, while Joe Ross led the losers with 10 points.

Last year New Kensington advanced to the final round before bowing to Braddock, while East Pittsburgh was eliminated by Swissvale, at that time champion of Section XI. The lineup:

E. Pgh.—	G.	F.	Pt.	N. Ken'ton—	G.	F.	Pt.

PIRATE ROSTER COMPLETE

The Pirate crew has been rounded up in its entirety for the 1933 pennant chase without a holdout. At least, that is the conclusion to be drawn from the fact that the name of every Pittsburgh player who did not go to Paso Robles with the advance guard is announced on the official list of Buccaneers to be taken to the spring training camp with the second squad, starting tomorrow.

While nothing definite on the subject has been made known at headquarters, the fact that no names are missing from the roster of the second caravan given out today, inasmuch as the local club never makes transportation arrangements for holdouts, would appear to indicate that all players are signed.

THREE IN PARTY

There will be only three persons in the party leaving the Pennsylvania Station at 9:55 o'clock tomorrow morning, the official announcement made by Vice President and Secretary S. E. Watters today disclosed. Those included will be Outfielder Adam Comorosky, Infielder Floyd Young and Lawrence Coller, assistant to Vice President Watters. Coller will be in charge of the party during the trip.

At Chicago tomorrow night, Outfielder Fred Lindstrom, Infielder Tony Piet and Tommy Thevenow and Scout Bill Hinchman will be added. At Kansas City, Mo., Outfielder Paul Waner, who has spent the winter at Miami Beach, will join, followed by Outfielder Forrest Jensen at Herrington, Kan.

DUE WEDNESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Waner, coming from Oklahoma City, will be picked up at El Paso. The rest will go direct to Paso Robles, reaching there on Wednesday, the same day on which the main squad will arrive.

KID WOLFE DUE TOMORROW

Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning for his fourth meeting with Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, in the main bout at Motor Square Garden, Monday night.

Wolfe, who has had more success against Yarosz than any other boxer the latter has met, getting a draw and a decision after losing in their first test, is as confident of drawing an indisputable win as Yarosz is of getting even this time. It was the decision awarded Wolfe in their most recent meeting, in the Garden, which ended Ted's proud record of no defeats.

School Quints Play Four Extra Periods

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—North Union defeated German Township, 28 to 27, here last night in a basketball game that went four extra periods.

At the end of the third extra period last night the referee announced that the rules forbade further playing. The team officials, however, persuaded him to let them continue and break the 25-25 tie.

Crowley Completes Staff at Fordham

Walsh, who played with the Rams in 1920-21, has been coaching at Des Moines, (Ia.) Academy the last few years.

City League Team In Tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's All-City High School basketball team, chosen by Julius Levin, scholastic editor, will be published in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PERRY CLINCHES SEC. II LEAD

South High, champion of Section I, will have as its opponent in the post-season series for the city scholastic basketball championship to be played in the Pitt Stadium pavilion starting Tuesday afternoon, Perry High School, champion of Section II.

This fact was established yesterday when the Perry quintet clinched the Section II laurels by defeating Oliver High at Perry, 33-17. South Hills finished in second place by defeating Carrick in the finale, 20-18.

SOUTH'S RECORD CLEAR

While Perry was defeating Oliver, South concluded its campaign in Section I by vanquishing Connelley, 44-27, for its twelfth straight victory. South did not lose a league game. In other Section I games Schenley defeated Fifth Avenue, 26-22, and Allderdice defeated Westinghouse, 26-21. Langley nosed out Allegheny in the third Section II fray, 35-34.

The first game of the playoff will be staged Tuesday, the second on March 3 and the third, if necessary, on March 7. All games will be played in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

RANKIN BEATEN

Rankin's winning streak in Section VIII of the W. P. I. A. L. was stopped last night by Ed Paulie's Swissvale team, which scored a 32-to-25 victory and knocked Rankin out the lead.

Norwin gained a tie for top honors in Section XI, defeating Jeannette, 23 to 20. Georges completed its play in Section XIII with a perfect record by defeating South Union, 19 to 12. Cecil eliminated McDonald from the race in Section XIV, winning, 21 to 10. Bentleyville remained tied with Centerville in Section XVI by taking over Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 25 to 19.

Tournament Draw Set for Monday

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 25.—Drawings for Washington County's scholastic basketball tournament will be held Monday night in the office of the county superintendent of schools.

Members of the executive committee of the Washington County Interscholastic Athletic Association and representatives of all competing schools are to be in attendance.

W. C. I. A. A. officials stated that all entries must be in by tonight, but that consideration would be given schools whose competition in W. P. I. A. L. play did not wind up until after tonight. The tournament will open Saturday afternoon, March 4, at 1 o'clock, at Trinity High School.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Georgetown University's Hoyas basketballers today were credited with having served Pitt's Golden Panthers their first Intercollegiate Conference defeat of the season.

The Hoyas nosed out the Panthers here last night, 28 to 27, when Capt. Jack Crowley popped a field goal from just past the foul circle with three seconds remaining to go.

The Panthers, presenting a revised lineup, due to the ineligibility of three members of the squad, were unable to click in their usual style, and although they held a 22-to-16 advantage at one point in the second half, failed to hold it. Georgetown led by 16 to 15 at the half.

Pitt was leading, 17 to 26, in the dying moments of the game, when Skippy Hughes broke clear, dribbled half the length of the floor and then missed a setup under the hoop that would have meant a Pitt victory.

O'Connor, Georgetown guard, and Skippy Hughes, of Pitt, tied for high scoring honors, with nine points apiece. The lineup:

Tartans Bow

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—Temple University's fast stepping Owls today rested in second place in the Intercollegiate Conference and boasted a revenge victory over Carnegie Tech.

The Owls, who have been setting a burning pace in Eastern basketball since a disastrous trip to Pittsburgh early in the season, defeated the Tartans here last night, 35 to 25.

Temple got away to a poor start and trailed the Tech passers early in the contest but managed to pull up to a 10-10 deadlock at the intermission.

In the second half, Tech took another slender lead, but the Owls went on a scoring spree that brought the victory.

Rosan, brilliant Owl forward, led both teams in scoring with 12 points. Bob Smith was high man for Tech with eight points, although he was limited to a single field goal. The lineup:

BOXERS LOSE

While the basketballers were being defeated, the Tartan boxing team dropped a 5-to-2 decision to the Temple punchers in a Conference match.

Two Temple boxers scored technical knockouts, Pete D'Allessandro stopping Budd Scott, of Tech, in the second round and Joe Pilconis winning a like victory over Tom Coulter, Tech's track and football star. The summary:

COLLEGE SPORT CARD HEAVY

By JESS CARVER

Five basketball games, two swimming meets, two boxing matches and the University of Pittsburgh track and field championships comprise a right healthy college sport program for city and district teams today.

The traveling Pitt and Tech basketballers, both defeated last night, face opposition just as stern today. The Panthers, who showed the ill effect of losing Clair Cribbs, as they lost to Georgetown last night, meet the crack Navy quintet at Annapolis. The Middies have rolled up no fewer than 692 points in 14 games to date, have won 13 and lost only to Penn. Navy beat Pitt last year and figures to repeat today.

TECH FACES LIONS

Tech, having lost to New York U. and Temple so far this week in eastern jousts, moves a bit nearer home but into more trouble, as the boys stop at State College tonight for a tussle with Penn State's Lions.

Other court tussles bring together West Virginia and Davis gether West Virginia and Davis-Elkins at Elkins; Edinboro and Slipper Rock at Slippery Rock and Fairmont and Bethany at Bethany.

Wash-Jeff's boxers and Bucknell's Bison scrappers have a conference date to keep at Lewisburg.

CASE SWIMMERS HERE

Carnegie Tech's swimmers, who yesterday turned back Western Reserve here in the Tartan pool, face another Cleveland varsity today in the Case tankers. Pitt's splashers are in Columbus for a session with Ohio State.

Both varsity and freshmen championships will be decided this afternoon in the Pitt track house as the university title meet is run off.

Several Pitt football stars are to be honored by the Carnegie Elks at a St. Patricks' Day banquet to be held at the Elks' Temple in Carnegie on March 17. Among the honor guests are to be Warren Heller, Bob Hogan, Ted Dailey, Si Meredith and John Love.

In yesterday's meet with Reserve, the Tartan swimmers were led by Miller, who turned in two victories, winning the 50-yard free style in 25 1 and the 100-yard event in 57.2. He also swam as anchor man on the 200-yard relay team. The Tartans won the meet by a 44-to-31 count. The Tech Plebes defeated Taylor Allderdice, 33 to 31. The summary:

200-yard free style relay—Won by Carnegie Tech (Franke, Vonderlocken, LaChance, Miller). Time—1 minute 44 seconds.

50-yard free style—Won by Miller, Carnegie; Wagner, Western Reserve, second; Weinberger, Western Reserve, third. Time—25 1-10 seconds.

150-yard breast stroke—Won by Boyer, Carnegie; Dickson, Western Reserve, second; Bray, Carnegie, third. Time—1 minute 50 9-10 seconds.

220-yard free style—Won by Weinberger, Western Reserve; Franke, Carnegie, second; Pracker, Western Reserve, third. Time—:02:38.4.

DEAF TOURNEY NEARS FINAL

BULLETIN.

The Pennsylvania Institute for the Deaf of Philadelphia gained the final round in the sixth annual Eastern States Schools for the Deaf basketball tournament at Edgewood today by defeating Lexington, of New York City, 28 to 27. In a consolation round game, Kendall, of Washington, D. C., defeated Fanwood, of New York City, 31 to 26.

The championship of the sixth annual Eastern States Schools for the Deaf basketball tournament will be decided on the floor of the Western Pennsylvania Institute for the Deaf at Edgewood today with four teams among the survivors.

In the semi-fianls this morning, Lexington Avenue, of New York, opposes Philadelphia, in the first game at 10 o'clock, while an hour later, Edgewood, the defending champion, clashes with Virginia. The two winners will meet at 8:30 tonight for the championship.

Upsets marked the early games in the tournament and as a result several of the favorites failed to survive the first round. Virginia got passage into the semi-finals by defeating Maryland, 32-21; New Jersey upset Kendall School, of Washington, 32-16, and bowed to Edgewood in the second round. Rhode Island defeated New York, 31-29, in the first round, but was eliminated by Lexington Avenue, 24-14, in the second round. Mt. Airy, of Philadelphia, entered the semi-finals by defeating St. Joseph's, of New York, 33-20.

Consolations will be run off this afternoon and evening for the eliminated teams. The battle for the runnerup position will take place at 7:30 with the championship final listed for an hour later.

PRO GRIDDERS MEET HERE

Owners of teams in the National Association of Professional Football Clubs gathered in the Fort Pitt Hotel today to arrange plans for the 1933 campaign. One of the most important questions to be settled will be steps to eliminate tie games in professional ranks.

Joseph F. Carr, of Columbus, president of the association, will preside at meetings scheduled for this afternoon and tomorrow.

Pittsburgh is one of the new cities seeking admittance to the professional league. Art Rooney, of the North Side, is sponsoring the movement to have Pittsburgh enrolled in the circuit.

Among the magnates who arrived for the meetings were George H. Halas, of the Chicago Bears; Dr. Harry Marsh, of the Chicago Cards; William Snyder, of the Portsmouth Spartans; the Dwyer brothers, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Tim O'Mara, of the New York Giants.

Boston, Stapleton, St. Louis, Washington and Philadelphia also have representatives at the meeting.

Artillery, Vang Poloists Clash

Facing an improved Artillery trio, the George Vang poloists tonight meet the test which will determine whether they will finish the heated race for the Pittsburgh Polo League trophy unmolested. The Vang riders, with four wins in five starts, can fortify themselves in first place by a win over the Artillerymen.

At Philadelphia—Billy Angelo defeated Vince Forgione, 10 rounds.

LENORE KIGHT SETS RECORD

A title and a new record are the proud possessions of Lenore Kight, Homestead's star girl swimmer, who was a member of the U. S. women's Olympic swimming team last summer.

Miss Kight last night won the senior A. M. A. 100-yard freestyle title in the Keystone Club pool and cracked the old A. M. A. record of 1:08, held jointly by herself and Josephine McKim, a former Homestead girl, now of Los Angeles. Miss Kight's time was 1:05 1-5. Johanna Gorman, also of Homestead, finished in second place, and her sister, Anna Mae Gorman, was third.

Evelyn Huckenstein of the K. A. C., captured the junior A. M. A. low board diving championship for girls, with Jane Layton, a clubmate, second and another K. A. C. entry, Jane Stilley, third.

The program was completed with a series of events for Keystone Club girls.

RAN WHIPS PETROLLE

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Eddie Ran, of Poland, won a decision from Frankie Petrolle, of Schenectady, N. Y., here last night in a 10-round feature bobut. There were no knockdowns.

RISKO WHIPS KING LEVINSKY

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—In his very best form as a "spoiler" of heavyweight ambitions, despite his 31 years, Johnny Risko, the round faced baker boy from Cleveland, gave King Levinsky a thorough trouncing last night in 10 rounds. It was Risko's third decision over the wild punching Chicago youngster.

It was a fine old rough and tumble brawl between a couple of the roughest warriors in the ring today and the stamping and snorting and wild punching entertained thoroughly a crowd of over 10,000, although the duel was of little significance in the present heavyweight scheme of things.

VON PORAT IN HOSPITAL

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—An examination at the Columbus Hospital today indicted that Otto Von Poret, Norwegian heavyweight boxer, was not seriously hurt or ill, following his eight-round technical knockout defeat by Tuffy Griffiths, of Sioux City, Ia., at the Coliseum last night.

Van Porat did not lose consciousous and was able to talk, but was weak and dizzy. He was unable to arise from the training table in his dressing room without becoming nauseated and his removal to the hospital was advised.

Von Porat had given the Sioux City youngster a thorough and methodical beating from the second round to the sixth, but in the seventh, apparently without having been hit hard, he suddenly ceased firing. He managed to hang on and stall out the round, but when he reached his corner he became severly ill and nauseated.

His seconds and manager, Ed Stevenson, worked over him frantically, but when he coughed up blood, Stevenson notified the referee, Tommy Thomas, that he could not go on.

CASE TIES JACKETS

PAULIE WALKER BEATS TIGER

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The race is not always to the swift, and that's why Tiger Joe Randall, Elizabeth welterweight, didn't win the main bout of the all-star card at the Arena, on the North Side, last night. He outran his opponent, Paulie Walker, of Trenton, N. J., all of the way through the 10 rounds, but it didn't happen to be a footrace, and Walker, ever pressing on and forcing the fight, carried every session.

Paulie showed to much better advantage than he did in his only other appearance here, at Hickey Park, against Davy Grove, when he was held to a draw. He was strong and wouldn't be denied. Randall early realized this and adopted safety first measures to keep out of the way as much as possible.

HOLT BEATS SHERMAN

Morrie Sherman, Detroit welterweight, made a strong finish against Billy Holt, of Homewood, in the semi-final 10-rounder, but he had lagged behind too much until then and dropped the decision. After three fairly even rounds, Holt stepped into the lead on his aggressiveness and harder punching, and he had a big advantage when Sherman uncorked his best stuff, all too late, in the final round. The crowd didn't like the decision and booed it, but it seemed fair from the press box. Judge Mike Moran and Referee Joe Zivic voted for Holt and Judge Frank Brown for Sherman.

Frank Novak, chunky North Side heavyweight, fought one of the gamest fights of his career to come from a mile behind and have Jack Pallat, of Cleveland, former national amateur champion, on the verge of a knockout when he had a cut eye so badly aggravated in the opening moments of the tenth and scheduled final round that Referee Red Robinson had to call a halt, thus turning what had possibilities of a knockout victory into a technical knockout defeat for the local man.

TOUGH BREAK FOR NOVAK

Pallat, arrayed in very, very red tights, and scaling 204½ pounds, had too much height and reach and boxing class on Frank in the early rounds and handed out quite a beating, dropping Frank for a count of three at the bell in the first round and for nine in the third, cutting Frank's right eye late in the opening session. Novak nailed his man on the ropes in the fourth and shook him up with head punches, which also drew blood from the nose, but Pallat added the fifth and sixth rounds to his string and appeared to be on his way to an easy victory when Frank suddenly came to life in the following round and slowed and cut down the Clevelander to his own size with a rough body attack. In the eighth, he dropped Pallat for a count of two with a left to the body and had him hanging on, arm and leg-weary, thereafter.

The bell saved Pallat in the ninth and Frank went out to finish him in the tenth when he ran into a second cut on the right eye, from which blood poured to such an extent that the fight had to be stopped.

The show drew one of the largest crowds of the season at the Arena, and announcement that next Friday night's card also will include three well-matched 10-round bouts was well received. Mose Butch will box Vidal Gregorio in the main event, Jimmy Thomas meets Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, in the semi-final, and Jackie Wilson and Ross Fields meet again in the first distance event.

PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Our Flag Contenders Answer Quiz, Giving Fans Lowdown on What's What and Why.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

No. 3—Catcher Thomas Francis Padden.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 25.

What have you to say for yourself, Tommy—you're charged with being a Pretender to Earl Grace's throne?

I think Earl is one of the nicest of a fine gang of Pirates—but I guess I'll have to plead guilty.

What's your age, Tom, and how long have you been connected with baseball?

Tommy Padden

I'm 24 — but I am a bit hazy about my first association with baseball. They tell me I was working on a bottle which held a nipple when somebody dropped a ball into my cradle. I tried to eat it and got enough of the cover in my tummy to give me a fever that breaks out in a rash every February.

How did you become a player?

Well, I always was at it while attending parochial grade school in my home town of Manchaster, N. H. When I reached high school I must have shown some little ability as a catcher, for I was asked to enter different colleges.

Did you go to college?

Yes, I attended Holy Cross College, but I left in my sophomore year. While I was there, however, I think I learned much from Coach Jack Barry, who starred for the Athletics.

I hope not too much, but I will still miss a meal to play a doubleheader. I like to eat, too. too.

When and what was your first professional engagement?

I guess I was very fortunate at the start for the Yankees purchased me and farmed me to Hartford, of Eastern League, the same year.

Where were you the next season?

I was switched to New Haven, of the same league, and also started the 1930 season with New Haven. But early in the latter season I was farmed to Baltimore.

Were you successful in Baltimore?

I hit about .300 and caught something like 100 games, but I was farmed to Kansas City in 1931. In the last named city I encountered my first setback.

What was the nature of it?

I am blessed with a good arm, but after having had a good season up to September I developed awful pains and could hardly throw. Medical attention disclosed infected tonsils and teeth. I had the tonsils and two troublesome molars removed.

Yes, but the doctor said I would not be able to throw for eight or nine months. This saddened me, as I was slated to go to St. Petersburg with the Yanks. I tried to hide my trouble, but collapsed in a practice game. Joe McCarthy was good to me when he learned about my trouble. He sent me over to Newark. I was beginning to feel good again when the Pirates bought me.

How are you now?

I played handball all winter to strengthen my arm and it feels great. It hurt me most of last year as I caught for the Pirates, but in the last week of the season it was great. I think I am fine again.

So you feel confident this year?

I will state that any catcher who beats me out this year is in for a fight.

A. A. U. STARS AFTER MARKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—The national A. A. U. championships, a 15-event carnival of speed and brawn, bring America's greatest indoor track and field athletes to Madison Square Garden tonight.

In view of the high class fields and the fact that the customary yardage system will be replaced by meters, records are in serious danger all along the line.

Defending the championships they won a year ago will be Emmett Toppino, in the sprint; Gene Venzke, at 1,500 meters; George Lermond, at 5,000 meters; Joe McCluskey, in the steeplechase; Everett Utterback, broad jump; George Spitz, high jump; Leo Sexton, 35-pound weight throw, and Percy Beard, in the hurdles.

Single Soccer Tilt On Program Today

Only one soccer game is scheduled for this afternoon, the Lawrenceville club, Central League champion, being booked to meet Clan Douglas at Westinghouse High School Field. The kickoff is scheduled for 3 p. m.

Three games will be played in the West Penn cup competition tomorrow, with the Zoneys and the Union Switch and Signal team holding the spotlight, at South Park.

Tourney and team play comprises a large card of squash racquets and handball action here this afternoon. The racquet pastime, featuring start of the class B city championship affair, monopolizes the major part of the calcium, but the glovemen, with full bills in both divisions of their inter-city loop, as well as latter-round intra-mural tournament competition at the Y. M. H. A., promise plenty of heat.

Forty-eight entries, by far the largest group ever assembled for an open squash conclave here, await 12:30 p. m. and the start of the class B racquet event on the Keystone A. C. courts. Sixteen first-round contests grace today's program, with as many more booked for tomorrow in the second bracket. The debating will continue throughout the week with final tussle set for next Saturday, when, incidentally, the class A tilting will get under way.

In the City Handball League, the pace-setting Y. M. H. A. combinations should pull through to enhance leads in each sector. The Bellefielders' A outfit is favored slightly to score over P. A. A. in the latter's bailwick, while the runner-up Y. M. C. A. first stringers face perilous test in invading Keystone A. C. Meanwhile in the lower section, Y. M. H. A. is at home to the in-and-out Winged Headers. As the leaders clash with P. A. A., Y. M. C. A. encounters hazard in the rehabilitated K. A. C. contingent.

Additional handball attraction at the Y. M. H. A. today calls for third-round matches in both the club Class B tourney and the Enoch Rauh Club milling.

MATCHES TODAY.

RED SOX MAY BE PEDDLED

BOSTON, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—On the eve of a visit from President William Harridge, of the American League, Bob Quinn, Boston Red Sox magnate, admitted the possibility of a speedy disposal of his baseball interests to a New York syndicate.

President Harridge, according to Quinn, is due here today merely to attend a testimonial luncheon to Marty McManus, the Red Sox manager. Followers of the club's ill-fortunes, however, were convinced that the league head has a more pressing reason for one of his rare official visits to Boston.

Quinn admitted that a New York group was dickering for his club. He said, however, that if the deal is not made within the next 24 hours, there is slight chance of it being consumated thereafter.

Baseball Briefs

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Optimism always is the keynote of baseball training camps but Manager Bill Terry of the Giants really seems to have something worthwhile to cheer about. Terry along with other Giant officials has been worrying over Travis Jackson, veteran shortstop, who was out with a knee injury most of last season. But Jackson, operated upon during the off season, cavorted at shortstop in old-time style yesterday and showed not a sign of the injury that laid him on the shelf in 1932.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Bob Cooney, of this city, one-time star hurler for Fordham University and for the past two years a member of the pitching staff of the St. Louis club of the American League, has signed his contract with the Browns for the 1933 season.

AVALON, Cal., Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Babe Herman already has won the long distance hitting championship of Catalina Island. In batting practice yesterday he slammed two balls out of the park and the natives agreed that they were the longest ever hit, including some mighty wallops by the old Cub hero, Hack Wilson.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP.)—Although a half dozen regulars are still unsigned, the first batch of New York Yankees, pitchers and catchers, will go through their first workout of the training season at St. Petersburg next Wednesday morning. Two more signed contracts were received at the Yankee offices yesterday. Frank Crosetti, young shortstop, and Pete Jablonowski were the latest to join the fold.

BATTLE WAGED BETWEEN STRIKERS AND DETECTIVES

by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

As he surveyed the existing scene and considered his ably matured plan for counteracting his employes' tactics, the intrepid Frick was confronted with a single obstruction. Just how were the Pinkertons to be brought into Homestead? The workmen controlled every entrance. Even the path afforded by the Monongahela was in their hands. Yet the river offered the one possibility of access. The Homestead property sloped to the bank, where facilities had been constructed for landing boats of considerable size. If such vessels could be brought noiselessly up the river, under darkness, there was at least a fighting chance that the scouts could be evaded, a landing made, and the "watchmen" smuggled in before the town awoke to the strategy.

Frick had carefully made his plans to this end. Two barges, large enough to provide quarters for 300 men, and tugs to conduct them up the river, had already been engaged. Armament had been placed on board, to be used only in case of extreme necessity.

At 2 o'clock on the morning of July 6, this flotilla left the dock, at a point near Pittsburgh, and began a silent progress on its dangerous errand. A foggy night held forth a promise of success. About 4 o'clock the barges reached the environs of sleeping Homestead. It was still dark and the fog had grown denser. So far the enterprise had fulfilled all expectations.

But Frick's preparations had not been unobserved. The Amalgamated intelligence system would have done credit to an army organized on more pretentious lines, for the strikers heard of the departure the moment the enemy left the wharf. Upon the company in the barges the realization that their movements were known came with a suddenness extremely disconcerting. The advance guards posted at decisive points worked with military precision.

The Alarm Given

The passengers in the quiet boats were congratulating themselves on the success of their voyage when bedlam suddenly broke loose. Rockets shot into the air; every steam whistle in the neighborhood began screeching; bells sounded their tocsin, and through the streets of Homestead horsemen rode, with the Paul Revere-like cry, "The Pinkertons are coming!" Men, women and children jumped from their beds and, hastily clad, rushed down to the river edge.

In a few minutes a surging mob, thousands strong, was stretched along the bank, yelling imprecations at the barges, hurling stones and scraps of metal, and firing revolvers directly at the hated objects. As the sturdy little vessels kept on their way, shots occasionally whizzing through the pilot house and striking the side, the rioters, constantly increasing in numbers, scurried along, determined to be the first to reach the landing. Frick's stockade, which ran down the bank to the river, gave the invaders an advantage.

The mob, delayed a few minutes by this obstruction and only a few, for it was presently broken down—did not reach the wharf until the barges had tied and thrown out a gangplank, prepared to discharge their passengers. Warned by the sniping that had taken place from the river side, the Pinkertons quietly seized their Winchester rifles, under the strictest orders from their leader not to use them unless it became necessary in self-defense. But the task was to disembark and take possession of the Homestead works, and they showed every intention of carrying out instructions.

A Savage Affray

The scene that followed represented one of those crises of mass hatred when men and women, ordinarily well-behaved and humanely disposed, temporarily lose all the restraints of civilization and lapse into savagery. Affairs had passed out of the control of the union leaders. The foreign element, especially the Hungarians and the Slavs, by this time had been transformed into frenzied barbarians. From all the surrounding villages recruits hurried to the scene of excitement, increasing the size of the mob until at least ten thousand rioters ultimately faced the three hundred guardsmen in the barges.

They made this sixth of July one of the most terrible in the industrial history of America. As soon as the guards stepped toward the gangplank a sharp pistol shot rang out. The evidence is pretty clear that this came from the embankment. The Pinkertons replied with a volley from their rifles and indiscriminate firing started from the strikers.

This first engagement, which lasted not more than five minutes, resulted in seriously wounding three Pinkerton guards—wounds so severe that the men subsequently died—and in killing five workmen and wounding many more.

The death of their associates stirred the rabble to an even higher pitch of fury. One determination now took possession of their souls, and that was utterly to annihilate every one of the 300 wretches on the boats. Beating a hurried retreat up the bank, they found concealment behind a barricade of pig iron, steel rails and other bullet-proof materials.

The small Pinkerton cohort, no match for the thousands of men protected by these breastworks, to say nothing of the large detachments on the hills and the opposite bank, fled into the barges and huddled together like cornered rats. The tug boat which had towed them to the spot sailed away, ostensibly to take the wounded to Pittsburgh; this left the vessels helplessly tied to the dock, with no means of escape.

Cannon Used

For two hours the rioters directed their rage against the boats, bent upon destroying them and the men inside. They riddled them with shot, hurled dynamite on the sides and roofs, poured oil on the surrounding water and attempted to set them on fire. An artillery piece implanted on the opposite shore, loaded with scrap iron, began a bombardment.

But these murderous intentions failed. The dynamite did not explode, the oil refused to burn, and the improvised cannon, inexpertly handled, succeeded only in blowing off the head of one of the strikers themselves.

After several hours the lust for slaughter subsided, the more rational leaders obtained control, a flag of truce was hoisted and the Pinkertons were invited to surrender. This the imprisoned men were thankful to do, stipulating only that they should be given safe conduct to the Homestead railroad station, promising, on their part, to leave the city immediately and forever. The union commanders agreed and the exodus began.

Either the promise had not been given in good faith or the negotiators were unable to restrain their followers, for the progress of the surrendered Pinkertons through Homestead remains, perhaps, the most horrible memory of the strike. The chief offenders were women, the wives of Hungarians, Slavs and Italians; these cowardly amazons, lining both sides of the advancing procession, beat the unarmed men with clubs, hurled stones and pieces of iron, until the march was changed into a mass of stumbling, falling, half crazed, bleeding men.

Finally, no one knew quite how, the Pinkertons were smuggled into a building, such as escaped transmission to the hospital being placed on a train and ultimately transferred to more congenial soil. The battle of Homestead had ended, with the workmen still in possession of their employers' property.

Officials to Blame

It is difficult, even at this length of time, to restrain one's indignation with the officials chiefly responsible for this unnecessary tragedy. The newspapers criticized most harshly the Governor of Pennsylvania, Robert E. Pattison, who, despite the vast resources at his disposal, failed to prevent it. How grievously he had neglected his duty became apparent five days after the clash of arms, for this occasion gave eloquent demonstration of the calming effect upon unbridled passions which can be exercised by public authority effectively marshaled.

Troops Arrive

On July tenth Homestead witnessed an awesome sight. Eight thousand soldiers, drawn up in scientific military array, with flashing bayonets and rumbling artillery, marched into the city. Not a hand was raised in hostility.

The strikers, enraged to murder by the approach of unofficial Pinkertons, stood silently respectful as these Pennsylvania troops took possession, pitched tents on the surrounding hills, trained artillery on the scene, and assigned regular patrols in all centers of danger.

Without the slightest opposition the Homestead mills were delivered to their legal owners. For the two months the militia remained on the ground they were not called upon to fire a shot, or to use rigorous methods of any kind. The most belligerent strikers America had witnessed since the Molly Maguires were suddenly transformed into the meekest and most law abiding.

One wonders what would have happened if Frick, instead of attempting to introduce 300 Pinkertons in the night, had kept away from his mill, served demand on the Governor of Pennsylvania for protection and waited until that dilatory magistrate had been forced by public sentiment to take the course that ultimately established order.

"If Mr. Frick," the Congressional committee reported, "had gone to Gov. Pattison in person and laid the case before him, instead of employing the Pinkertons in the first instance, we believe that the Governor would, as he finally did, in the discharge of his plain duty, have sent a sufficient force to enable the Sheriff to have taken possession and delivered to the Carnegie company their property, to the end that they might have operated their mills in their own way and have avoided a riot."

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Just beginning to realize that life is a puzzle to most people. Anything that attracts the detective instinct in people receives plenty of attention.

Michael Maureno, John E. Sterner, Red Shaughnessy and Andrew Stefani have solved the riddle of the ages. If a wife is 12 years younger than her husband and her daughter is half as old as the mother, and the combined ages of the father, mother and father are 100 years, then the dad is 47 years, two months and 12 days, the daughter is 17 years, seven months and 12 days; the wife is 35 years, two months and 12 days.

Now, how about this one? A man lost $280. He gained back two-thirds of what he had left. He then had half the original amount. How much did he have in the first place?

M. E., of California, Pa., is puzzled, too. She wants to know who would be president if the President-elect and the vice President-elect would die before a cabinet is appointed. The matter is cared for by the twentieth amendment. Congress would elect the next President.

J. J. Jarvis comes through with the scientific term to show that we were all wet in believing starlings were a cross between the robin and the blackbird. The starling, he says, is a native European bird—Sturnus Vulgaris.

Something new and interestingly helpful is being cooked for the Globe-Trotters.. Wait until next week.

We have had many inquiries concerning the announcement that caretakers of county juvenile children will receive $5 per week instead of $5.61, due to a recent economy measure by the Commissioners. You say that you had only received $4.41 and get only $4 now. The difference in the legal appropriation and what the caretaker actually receives is accounted for in the fact that the county authorities use it to buy clothes for the youngster.

Bentleyville Globe Trotters in Indiana, Helen Prunkhard et al, caught the evening broadcast and say it made them feel like home. Sounds nice, doesn't it? They wouldn't be taking the G.-T. for the well-known buggy ride, would they?

'Master Mind' To Be Made Radio Czar

By AIRCASTER

The master mind—a kilocycle synonum for the dictatorial movie director—is coming to radio. He is to solve the knotty problems of show production which overlapping executives and criss-crossing departments have tangled and mechanized, just as the smart gents with the megaphones replaced the bungling of early politics-ridden bigwigs in Hollywood.

No longer is the radio program to remain a mechanical product, fabricated from ill-fitting patterns supplier by belligerent and disassociated departments. It is to materialize as an inspirational piece of art, revealing the superfine touch of poignant personality, and it is to be woven by a single brain empowered by the executive branches to dominate artist bureaus, program departments, continuity writers, authors and composers.

* * *

The wireless webs are not looking to the beer manufacturers to fill the gaps left by departing sponsors in the spring. The beer advertisers, who already are holding serious auditions, will, to a large degree, become local clients, if at all. There are less than half a dozen national concerns which might patronize entire networks.

* * *

Whoops! Will Osborne is going to desert his present work to go into concert. He opens tomorrow night from a dance spot, by the way, but wil soon abandon the dance platform. He explains:

"The reason that I have decided to start out with a Carnegie Hall concert and then go classical is because I think the public is tired of long-haired musicians and wants sex appeal on the modern concert platform."

Gosh!

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

"Why the pensive air, Pretty Face? A shiny penny for your thoughts?" A little startled, Judith looked up into the darkly handsome countenance of Loranda's friend, Jack Ordway.

She forced herself to smile at him, although the bold black eyes that had stared at her through the shop window a week ago had a challenging light in them that vaguely disconcerted her.

Synopsis

Judith Brian, a secretary in the Knickerbocker Bank, and Barry Deane, young executive, are secretly attracted to one another. Judith, however, feels that Barry is above her socially. Zella, Judith's friend, receives an attractive offer from Loranda Tewson, society girl, to manage a dress shop for her. Zella and Judith leave their drab boarding house and rent an apartment. Judith is unhappy when she is transferred to the bank's uptown office where she will not be able to see Barry. Loranda's friends attend the shop's opening. Barry arrives and thrills Judith by his adoring gaze.

Now Go On

"I was thinking that tea's an outworn commodity here in New York. Indeed, anything without kick in it, whether it's a girl or a song or a beverage, is distinctly demodee," said Judith provocatively.

"And why not?" He sat down beside her at the little table. "But you surely don't put yourself in the old-fashioned class, Miss Judith, with your charm and beauty?"

"Oh, I don't know. She flushed under his admiring stare, but she had made up her mind that she would enter into the spirit of this dashing younger set where Barry in his idle moments seemed to move . . . that she would cultivate the airy repartee, the persiflage, that made Loranda and her kind so fascinating. "I was like the venturesome little duckling in the story when I swam away from home—very brave and all, you know, and thinking I was very clever—but now I flounder out of my depth a bit, rather."

"From the pond to the ocean? Ha! I see! There's nothing I'd love better than to flounder close to you if you'll permit me, Miss Judith."

THINKS OF BARRY

He took the teacup from her hand, and as he did so he contrived to give her fingers a swift pressure. "I'd like to be your guide around this merry little burg—to be accorded the privilege of educating you!"

"In what?"

"In what every pretty little girl should know. You'll see. I pride myself on being an A-1 teacher."

"That leaves me vague," Judith declared, still with the forced smile on her lips, and her mind on Barry and Loranda and whatever were they doing all this time, closeted together in the little serving pantry?

"As long as it doesn't leave you cold? Ha! Just in the nick of time! How excessively opportune!"—and he swooped directly at Loranda, who had emerged with a loaded tray of cocktails.

"One for me, and one for my little duckling yonder!" He helped himself to a couple of glasses. "Loranda, imagine that beautiful child only just beginning to flap her little wings! Isn't it touching?"

Loranda barely lowered her voice as she said, impatiently: "Oh, quit your ravings, Jack, about birdies learning to fly in this sophisticated age and city! Sweet Innocence is dead as the dodo, and don't let anybody fool you to the contrary!"

He laughed, amused and a little flattered at what he considered a jealous outburst. He went back to Judith with the cocktail and made her drink every drop of it.

BECOMES COURAGEOUS

A warmth stole through her veins. Now, fortified, she could meet these bright, flippant girls on their own territory. She had not heard the whole of Loranda's catty little speech, but she decided then and there that she would be as "oncoming" as any of the gang, and not permit Loranda to annex Barry entirely.

"Excuse me one moment, Mr. Ordway," she said firmly, setting down her empty glass. She walked straight into the tiny pantry where Barry was cracking bits of ice. "Can I help you, Mr. Deane?" she asked. "I'm a regular jill-of-all-trades round this place."

"Thank you. I'm through. I've earned a little chat with you, I think. Let's grab that divan behind those palms—over in the corner where the people just left."

The orchestra had struck up again, the mannequins had started to parade, and the guests were all pushing forward toward the front part of the shop.

A glass in either hand, Barry led Judith to the corner. "This stuff won't harm you once in a while—at least, a little of it won't. Mr. Graves has the real thing in his cellar."

"The president of the bank, you mean? You go to his house quite often, don't you?" Despite the thrill of Barry wanting to chat to her alone, and deliberately leading her here, Judith's heart twisted a little.

WISHES HER HAPPINESS

He saw the wistfulness in her lovely eyes, and mistook the reason for it. This pretty child was lonely in New York . . . it was on the tip of his tongue to suggest that he might take her one evening to the Graves' home . . . and then he hesitated, recollecting in time that it was scarcely his role to form a social bridge—however democratic all concerned might be—between the millionaire head of the Knickerbocker bank and one of the stenographer-bookkeepers.

"And here's to Pan and his pipes," she said softly, holding her glass up to a bronze statue of the little Piper of Dreams that peeped through the fronds of a palm at them.

"May he pipe you the rarest and best, and may they all come true." Barry smiled in her eyes, and that look was a magic link that reached down to the very soul of Judith.

"Thank the blessed Lord that's over!" Zella exclaimed when the door closed on the last of Loranda's friends and customers at a quarter of eight. "I thought they'd never go! And heavens! The cocktails they drank!"

Here. Sit down. I've made you fresh tea." Judith disappeared and returned with a steaming cup in her hand. "And eat this sandwich, Zella, please. You must be dead—you were on your feet a straight 12 hours today, and more—but it was a grand opening!"

"I'll say it was! The way they drank, you'd think they were dromedaries setting out on a long trek in the desert!"

"They had a fine time. And how many dresses did you say were ordered?"

"Around a dozen or more. They were tight as ticks, but I daresay they'll stick to their word. They're sporting enough."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today all the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club welcomed the return of the old type entertainment. The entertainers who appeared today were all members of the club and received thunderous applause from their fellow club members as they appeared. The short vacation from the constant rehearsals and the Saturday morning appearances had its effect upon the youngsters. Today they acted just like a bunch of "kids" released from school for the summer vacation.

The members in the audience also were glad to see them return and the youngsters on the stage were forced to take bow after bow and in many instances had to repeat their song and dance before the audience would quiet down enough to let the next act appear.

Almost 50 signs were entered in the Enright sign contest ranging in size from a foot square to ones that needed two and three boys to carry. The members of the Enright welcomed the members of the Cameraphone Chapter at their meeting today. The Cameraphone Chapter until further notice will meet at the Enright each Saturday morning. Manager Frank Roberts is planning to hold an election of officers next week and the question now is shall the members elect two grand jesters and two boards of governors—one for the Enright and one for the Cameraphone—or, just one each. He is going to let the members decide this bers of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club question for themselves.

Congratulations to all mem- who are celebrating birthdays today.

CLUTCH AND THREE-SPEED TRANSMISSION

The speed (number of revolutions per minute) of an internal combustion engine is restricted within comparatively narrow limits. The velocity of auto varies from a maximum to zero. Hence transmission contains gears for change in ratio. Clutch is a coupling by friction between motor and transmission, to permit motor to idle when car is not driven.

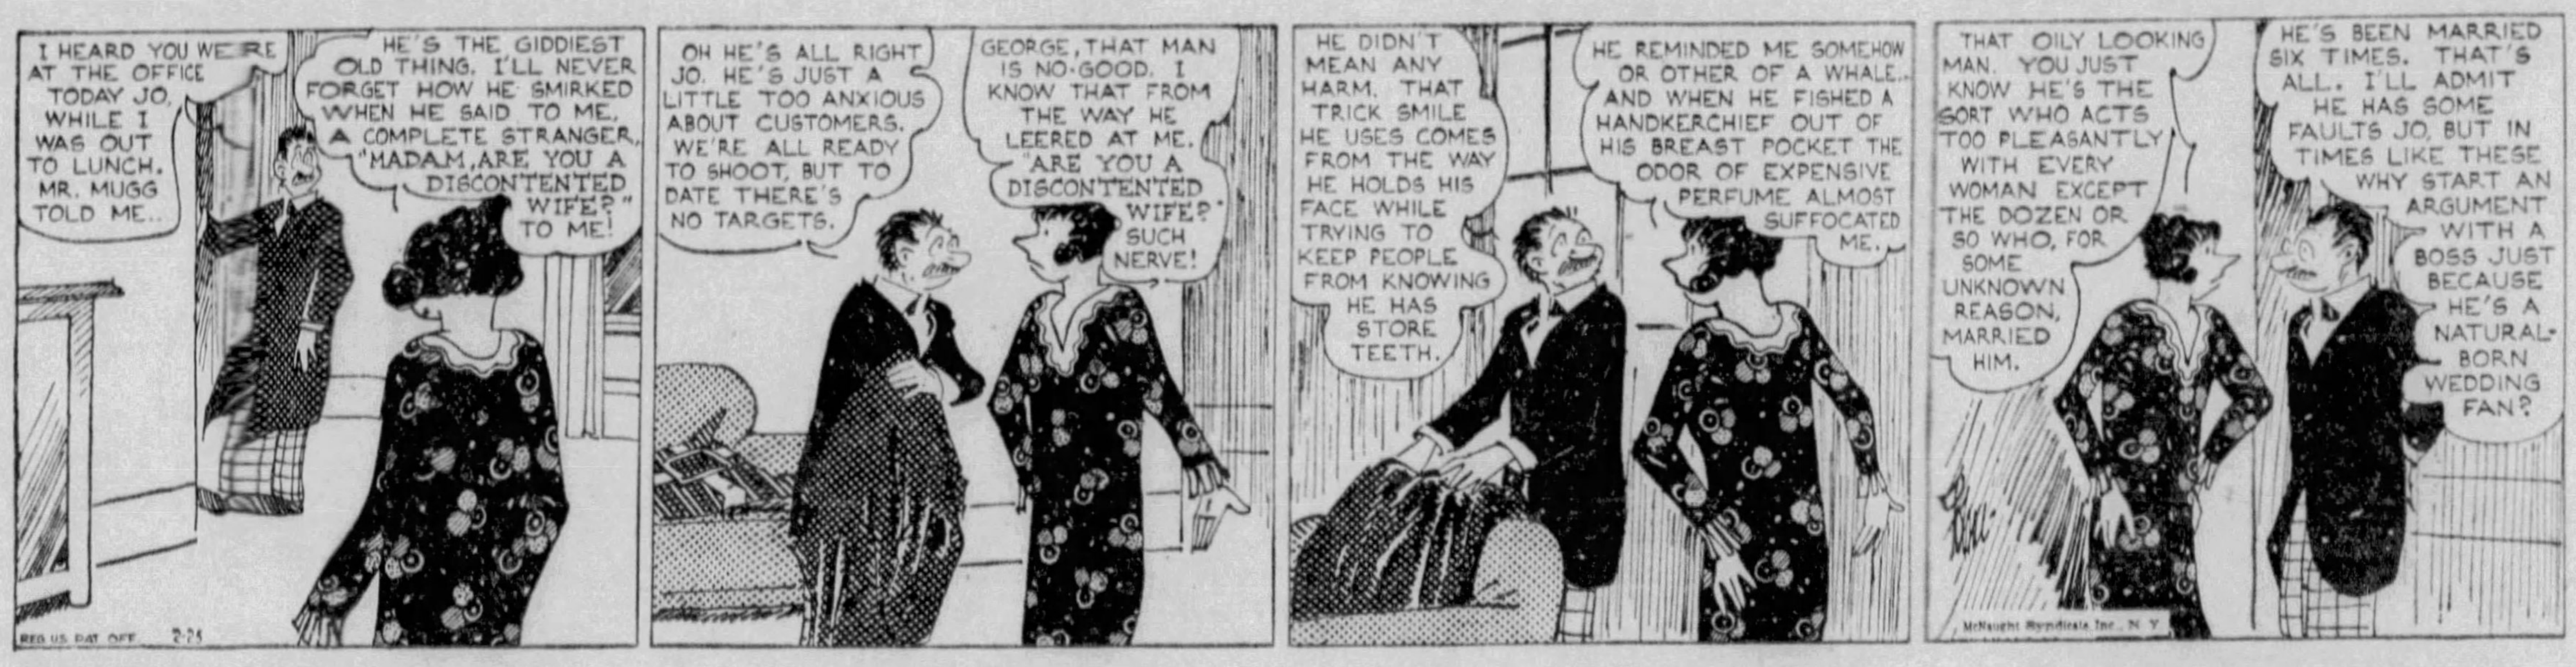
The Chief Under Fire



I HEARD YOU WERE AT THE OFFICE TODAY JO, WHILE I WAS OUT TO LUNCH. MR. MUGG TOLD ME.
HE'S THE GIDDIEST OLD THING. I'LL NEVER FORGET HOW HE SMIRKED WHEN HE SAID TO ME, A COMPLETE STRANGER, "MADAM, ARE YOU A DISCONTENTED WIFE?" TO ME!
OH HE'S ALL RIGHT JO. HE'S JUST A LITTLE TOO ANXIOUS ABOUT CUSTOMERS. WE'RE ALL READY TO SHOOT, BUT TO DATE THERE'S NO TARGETS.
GEORGE, THAT MAN IS NO-GOOD. I KNOW THAT FROM THE WAY HE LEERED AT ME. "ARE YOU A DISCONTENTED WIFE?" SUCH NERVE!
HE DIDN'T MEAN ANY HARM. THAT TRICK SMILE HE USES COMES FROM THE WAY HE HOLDS HIS FACE WHILE TRYING TO KEEP PEOPLE FROM KNOWING HE HAS STORE TEETH.
HE REMINDED ME SOMEHOW OR OTHER OF A WHALE. AND WHEN HE FISHED A HANDKERCHIEF OUT OF HIS BREAST POCKET THE ODOR OF EXPENSIVE PERFUME ALMOST SUFFOCATED ME.
THAT OILY LOOKING MAN. YOU JUST KNOW HE'S THE SORT WHO ACTS TOO PLEASANTLY WITH EVERY WOMAN EXCEPT THE DOZEN OR SO WHO, FOR SOME UNKNOWN REASON, MARRIED HIM.
HE'S BEEN MARRIED SIX TIMES. THAT'S ALL. I'LL ADMIT HE HAS SOME FAULTS JO, BUT IN TIMES LIKE THESE WHY START AN ARGUMENT WITH A BOSS JUST BECAUSE HE'S A NATURAL-BORN WEDDING FAN?

Bugs Baer

They Never Ask the Right Man

The time has come to keep your opinions in your own backyard.

There are too many people stepping out of line in an effort to qualify as experts on the topical debris.

We don't know why Paderewski unbuttoned his illustrious chinstrap to take a whack out of the machine age.

We'll guarantee that Paddy doesn't know any more about machines than an iron deer does about saddle sores. But somebody probably solicited his opinion and Paddy had to say something while waiting for his samovar to boil.

The distinguished musician isn't quite so culpable as the guy who asked him. If you want to know something about everything why not interview The Bug? He will straighten your hairpins out. Let Paddy stick to his thick-ankled piano and us technical guys will make the left turns on the diving boards.

There are authorities on all questions. If you want to know about mechanics don't ask the man who plays a piano. Ask the guy who builds one.

-AND WHAT DO YOU THINK OF TECHNOCRACY ?
YES. DON'T YOU ?

That's good logic as sure as an organ grinder knows how to feed a monkey. There are thousands of egg-heated theorists rushing into the technocracy thing because it's something new and they'll get another row of mysterious letters in front of their names much like a popular brand of summer underwear.

They are spouting at all angles and diffusing their talents like a busted garden hose that makes the lawn a swamp without helping the flowers.

We would be better off if we gave each one a long soda water straw and made 'em inhale their soup through very strong chicken wire.

No machine runs when the nuts are loose. That's the trouble today. The trouble with the visionary is that he never gets back to earth with his parachute working.

If you're a little bit screwy, if your hair is so long that you could be killed by an attack of dandruff, if you wear your shoes to bed, you can be sure you will be interviewed and that your opinions will be respected more than if they made sense.

That's the reason The Bug is rated so high in scientific circles. He's as batty as a roach in a burning house. And when you don't understand a man you must agree with him.

Completion of River and Harbor Projects Urged

After the depression is over, the quality of economic statesmanship in this period will be measured by the amount of permanent improvements which were made through the use of man-power which otherwise would have been idle.

With private industry letting man-power languish, the federal government has a special duty to salvage as many of the unemployed as it can from unproductive idleness.

The Chief of Engineers estimates that on the average 40,000 men are employed in activities of the War Department in improving river and harbor works.

As the new administration takes hold, it should forthwith formulate plans for completing all necessary developments of rivers and harbors promptly.

Such desirable activity will not only give employment to individuals who would otherwise be without gainful work, but it will also encourage the development of our merchant marine and will prove a stimulus to commerce.

In the last fiscal year, active operations were in progress on 361 such waterway projects.

Congress, in the new budget, recognizing the permanent value of such capital expenditures, should provide liberally for a continuation of these activities.

Under wise political management, depressions should be regarded as golden opportunities for quickening efforts to make permanent improvements in our national resources.

Not Yet Won

The Battle Against the Narcotic Traffic Must Go On—Brief Comment on Local News.

The price of morphine has increased in Pittsburgh since 1927 from $65 to $125 an ounce, and it is obtained now only in adulterated form. This fact, cited by Assistant United States Attorney Zeno Fritz, in a "National Narcotic Education Week" statement, as evidence that it is becoming more and more difficult to obtain the prohibited drug, is gratifying.

But it is not to be forgotten that while the price of whisky advanced after the passage of the Volstead Act from 15 to 50 cents a drink, and is obtained now only in adulterated form, there is still a great deal of whisky-drinking. The battle against morphine and other illicit narcotics has not yet been won, nor will it be until they cannot be obtained at any price.

The approach of spring is observable not only in the weather but also in some of the illustrations that will grace the Gravure Section in tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. There are pictures of the new styles in women's hats and apparel. Other photographs, covering a wide range of outdoor sports, will appeal to men as well as women.

Frenzied Finance!

Dawes, Young and Mitchell Revelations Call for Pitiless Exposure of Questionable Deals.

The late Joseph Choate upon his return to the bar after serving as ambassador to England had occasion, in one of his infrequent appearances thereafter in court, to discuss the methods of bankers as applied to railroads.

His case involved the looting of a railroad by the familiar process of a banker's reorganization. He recalled what had happened to the Chicago and Alton Railway—a blue-ribbon road which under the banker's wand had been converted overnight into a limping and indifferent property.

Mr. Choate said one might describe the case he was discussing as "after the Chicago and Alton," just as one speaks of a picture as "after Rembrandt" because it suggests the master's style.

In the same way, as one reads the testimony of Gen. Dawes and Owen D. Young before the Senate committee, one is tempted to say that the picture they gave of the Insull collapse is "AFTER the Dawes plan" or "after the Young plan."

Each of these plans for dealing with German reparations and inter-governmental debts, is as complicated as the corporate set-up of the Insull enterprise.

It is to be doubted whether their authors, if called on to explain them, would not be enveloped in the same helplessness which Mr. Young felt when he began in February, 1931, to examine "the ramifications of the complicated structure" of the Insull set-up.

Both plans contemplated prodigious lendings as an inducement for problematical and attenuated repayments by the borrower. And both seem to have been followed by Young and Dawes in their efforts to steady the tottering Insull pagoda.

In the presence of such far flung failure, one must conclude that something was wrong with the thinking if not the code of these hapless salvors.

It is not a little thing to admit that a bank, with which one's name is prominently connected, has been guilty of a violation of the spirit of a law if not its letter.

Nor is it a trivial thing for Mr. Young to recommend a loan of $2,000,000 to the Insull swindle, confessing that he was unable to comprehend its set-up or the inter-relations of its hundred or more constituent companies.

Was anything to be gained by supporting at such cost a structure which never should have been erected—by prolonging the life of a swindle, with no possible result except an increase in the number and the losses of its victims?

And now we have the testimony of Charles E. Mitchell before the same Senate committee.

There seems to be no quarter to which investigation is directed in which similar disclosures are not promptly forthcoming.

One thing is plain, however—the work of investigation must go on! The questionable transactions of ALL big moneyed interests should be pitilessly exposed.

Depressing as such revelations are, it is better that the facts be revealed than covered up.

Only with knowledge of what is being done, can it be hoped that legislation will be devised which will lift the tone of prevailing business methods, and make impossible the continuance or recurrence of such practices as are now being unfolded to us.

Completion of this historic reform now rests with the states—and every state should, for the sake of law and order, regard repeal as emergency legislation to be ratified with the least possible delay. Every citizen must keep this in mind.

For obviously, Prohibition cannot be enforced. That being so, it must be repealed.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

In trying to think of something that might bring you in money, isn't it true that your mind centers on what someone else has already done?

Why not try for a totally different idea?

If you start out with the thought that everything that is desired or needed has been presented then there is little use in your continued planning.

Be original—branch out in a different line from anything of which you now have knowledge.

Don't make the mistake in thinking that the only thing that will be accepted must be something big and important.

Fortunes have been made from little things of practical value, which have a general appeal because of their small cost, which makes rapid sales.

That was the time to try your inventive genius.

To want something and work it out in a practical way is the secret back of many a little gadget that has proved a money-maker.

And you have probably wasted many good hours in trying to work out something you haven't the capacity to make.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Near the serene shadows of Washington square, several times a week, are held evening classes in public speaking. Most of the roster is composed of successful men who have felt that desperate eddy of self-consciousness when suddenly called upon to speak or respond to a toast.

Here, under the tutelage of Dale Carnegie, who is responsible for the forensic finish of Lowell Thomas and others, the timid are coached. When called upon, they must stand and deliver. When they sit down, their various derelictions are vigorously criticized.

They may be asked to introduce an imaginary Howard Chandler Christy, Otis Skinner, Katharine Cornell or Mahatma Gandhi without a second of preparation. Or they may be asked just as suddenly to discuss any topic. If they do not acquire the knack in 14 lessons, they are hopeless.

The majority lose that paralyzing bete noir—fear—in about six tries. And, in most instances, before the course is finished, their chief trouble is garrulity. They have to be halted. Among current and potential Demostheneses are Robert Colgate, R. M. Brinkerhoff, George Delacorte and Maurice Holland.

* * *

In most instances, the deft public speaker is made—not born. Irvin Cobb was a washout in his first half-dozen banquet speeches. He made one of his aims in life the mastery of this bugaboo. Rupert Hughes used to stand up and stumble into a blushing confusion. So did Channing Pollock. The list is long.

My own experience in oratory has the futility of a philosopher running down the absolute. After many false starts, I have thumbs-downed all entreaties. My last agonizing experience was in Los Angeles, where I stood with knees in castanet obbligato while my mouth opened in the manner of a ventriloquist's dummy, without sound. Finally, there was a trebled squeak, and I cleared my throat to begin again when some uncouth nogooder yelled: "Quick, Watson, the typewriter!"

There is something of unconscious pathos in the readying of a spring garden by an apartment house neighbor, whose efforts at horticulture may be seen from my workshop. His glebe instinct is expressed in an inside window box, which he evidently hopes will burgeon with blooms soon. Each evening he is inspecting and patting the dirt. Last evening I halooed: "How's it coming on?" He smiled sheepishly: "A little early to say!"

Circulation experts likely know, but I've often wondered why people on the west side of New York, especially along upper Broadway, show eagerness to read the morning newspaper before retiring for the night.

Along a reach of Broadway, too—in the 80's, I should say—I found myself gazing into a bright-lit window of flimsy lingerie. One pair, in a sheen of pink, bore the label "Aphrodite—$1.19." A roguishly rouged, and I'm inclined to suspect buoyantly bunned, maid edged alongside. "Pretties for the ladies," she chirped. As I did not, at my age, care to be serialized in one of those running sidewalk flirtations, I nodded and moved on. She followed and fell in step. "Where now?" She persisted. So I hopped into a taxi, slammed the door, and came on home. Getting so I can't go out for a walk without being chivied by women!

Incidentally, such nymphs du pave are thickest in their solicitations around midnight between the Astor, on Broadway, and Fiftieth street. For some reason, the heaviest patrol is on the west side of the street. The method of approach has not changed with the debouching of keptees from penthouses and apartments to the sidewalk.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

DARE TO BELIEVE IN YOURSELF!
"But I do believe
"In myself!" you say;
No, you don't!
Deep beneath your laughter,
Beneath your boasting
And your careless appearance
Of self-confidence,
Lurks a secret fear
Of Yourself.

You do not really
Know that inner Self;
It is a mystery to you
And a menace;
You do not know
What it will do;
You are always afraid
It may fail you
Or betray you,
And cause people
To laugh at you
Or scorn you;
So you walk in dread,
Never sure of yourself.

Stop it!
If you do not Believe in yourself,
Who will believe in you?
Dare to believe in yourself!
There's a weak side
To everyone,
But there's also
A strong side.
You can develop
Either side you wish;
Whichever side
You believe in most
Will come true.
Then stop
Believing in your weakness,
And start
Believing in your strength!
Believe in the nobility,
The courage and honesty
Which you know are hidden
Within yourself;
Believe—and carry
That faith like a banner
Through the smoke
And the fury
Of Life.

AND DARE TO BELIEVE
IN YOUR FELLOW MAN!
He, too, has a secret self
Which betrays him;
But if you,
In spite of your weakness,
Can be strong,
Why should not he?
He can be!
He can be anything
He chooses to be.
He can be anything
You expect him to be—
Devil or demigod.
Then dare to believe
In the best of him,
As you believe
In the best of yourself.
DARE TO BELIEVE THAT HE IS FINE—
AND HE WILL BE FINE.

DARE TO BELIEVE IN YOURSELF.
AND DARE TO BELIEVE IN LIFE!

What is Life?
Nobody knows.
Some call it God.
We only know
It is an urge
Which is lifting man
Out of the slime,
Up to the stars.
BELIEVE IN THAT URGE!!
Stop counting the blunders,
The failures and tragedies,
Which have interrupted
Life's progress.
Think, rather,
Of the noble triumphs
And the lovely miracles
Which have marked
The long, dark trail.

Consider the ages,
The endless, brutal ages
During which Life
Has struggled,
Yet survived,
Always groping,
Always rising,
Never vanquished!
You believe in that past
Because it is revealed;
THEN DARE TO BELIEVE IN THE FUTURE;
DARE TO BUILD THAT FUTURE
OUT OF YOUR FAITH!

Dare to believe
That Life will go on
As it has gone on.
Dare to believe that you
And your fellow man
Will go on,
Because you are both
Part of Life.
If Life
Cannot be vanquished,
If Life can survive
Its losses and agonies
And its graves,
So will you survive
In spite of everything!
DARE TO BELIEVE!

Essential Bank Reforms

Legislation Is Required to Force Bankers to Correct Improper Practices.

By JULIUS G. BERENS

Financial Editor, New York American.

BANKING reform will not be accomplished voluntarily by bankers.

2—Widespread branch banking.

UNDER prevailing conditions, there are 49 banking "systems" in the United States: the national banking system and each state's group, the latter under the supervision of their respective banking superintendents.

THE IDEAL REFORM WOULD BE THE CONSOLIDATION OF THESE VARIED, CONFLICTING AND COMPETING COMMERCIAL BANKING GROUPS INTO A SOLID, NATIONALLY-MINDED AND NATIONALLY-CONTROLLED ORGANIZATION.

The FEDERAL RESERVE, having displayed its ability and value during the major crises since its formation, is entitled to become the dominant factor in the projected NATIONAL commercial banking organization.

ACCORDINGLY, THE PROPER LEGISLATION MUST BE INTRODUCED IN CONGRESS WHICH WILL MAKE FEDERAL RESERVE MEMBERSHIP COMPULSORY FOR ALL COMMERCIAL BANKS IN THE COUNTRY.

AUTHORITIES differ over the proper procedure to bring about commercial banking unification.

INDUCEMENTS to join the Federal Reserve cannot be offered non-members. Whenever this has been attempted, the state legislatures or state banking superintendents have so eased their own regulations as to offset the Federal Reserve inducement.

This is one of basic weaknesses in the so-called dual system of national and state commercial banking: the encouragement to laxity, rather than constantly more stringent regulations governing banking practices.

ONCE national unity in commercial banking is achieved, under the aegis of the Federal Reserve, the other reforms advocated might easily be effected.

Granted proper authority from Congress, the Federal Reserve board, the controlling body in the national system, could force the abandonment by its member institutions of security-selling or security-promoting affiliates. At least, the reserve board could so limit their activities as to remove the most dangerous practices revealed in recent years.

The power to grant the Federal Reserve supervision, or control, over these security-affiliates, rests solely with Congress. This reform can be accomplished regardless of the unification of banking.

It is one of the basic proposals of the Glass banking bill passed by the Senate and now before the House of Representatives, that such affiliates be segregated.

CONGRESS has it also within its power to extend branch banking. The Glass banking bill allows for expansion of this practice.

Currently, segregation of thrift accounts from commercial deposits in commercial banks is regulated mainly by state statutes; it is not a common practice in this country.

Under the control of the Federal Reserve, such regulations as are advisable to effect this important reform could be adopted and enforced.

Congress might empower the Comptroller of the Currency, to which authority all national banks are answerable, to compel such segregation. Otherwise, it remains for state legislation to accomplish the same end.

THE economic policy commission of the American Bankers' Association, which is cold to national banking unification or widespread extension of branch banking, nevertheless makes these concessions:

". . . . It is our conviction that the Federal Reserve system constitutes the most promising instrumentality for building up the kind of a banking structure for the nation that is to be desired.

"We are in favor, therefore, of a broadening unity in the functioning of our commercial banks, both state and national, along sound, co-ordinated lines under the leadership of an ever improving Federal Reserve system."
